FOR NATIONAL SECURITY—

USAF Aeronautical Chart and Information Service

BY COL. PAUL C. SCHAUER, USAF
Commanding

THE USAF Aeronautical Chart and Information Service, operating as an exempted station of the Air Materiel Command, provides all the aeronautical charts and related materials which the United States Air Force requires to perform its mission in every quarter of the globe in peace and in war. It is the only United States organization which has on hand, and keeps current, aeronautical charts of every world area.

Col. Schauer

A comparative newcomer to the nation's Armed Forces, the Aeronautical Chart and Information Service is an outgrowth of World War II, when charts suitable for military uses were urgently needed. The war was a global conflict, and many areas were poorly mapped. The Map-Chart Division, Air Traffic Services, Army Air Forces, expanded rapidly and undertook the double task of creating a comprehensive system of charts and of producing them in numbers sufficient for the requirements of military aviation. It succeeded in covering the earth's surface with charts on several scales. Using its own newly-acquired facilities and with the aid of other government agencies and private firms, it was able to produce a volume which reached its height in fiscal year 1945 with more than 42,000,000 charts. In April 1944 the Map-Chart Division was redesignated the Aeronautical Chart Service. Addition of further responsibilities within its field caused redesignation 1 February 1951 as the USAF Aeronautical Chart and Information Service.

Victory in the Pacific brought a considerable diminution in the need for charts. It also provided opportunity for re-examination of requirements and for the formulation of a flexible program designed to keep chart-making abreast of advances in military aviation.

That program continues to be the responsibility of the Aeronautical Chart and Information Service, which produces and maintains approximately 6,200 individual charts, covering all world areas outside, and some within, the United States and its possessions. Other United States charts are stocked and are distributed to the Air Force.

Charts include every type essential to the Air Force mission. Types include

Rep. Sutton Submits WO Bill; Dept. Tardy

Representative Pat Sutton (D-Tenn)—his patience exhausted—this week introduced in Congress legislation providing for a sweeping revision of the current warrant officer structure by increasing the number of warrant officers in the top pay grades, W-4 and W-3.

"I regret that the Department did not come up with a bill of its own, which probably would be more detailed than mine," Congressman Sutton told THE JOURNAL, "but the warrant officer problem needs to be remedied as quickly as possible."

He said his bill is based on a warrant officer policy agreed to by representatives of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard on 6 Jan. 1950, but never formalized by the Department of Defense into a bill on which Congress could take action.

It is recalled that last year the Department stated its intention to make it possible for every qualified officer to reach the W-4 category, equivalent to the rank of major, prior to retirement for age or length of service. At that time, Representative Sutton was informed that a bill embodying the Department's plan would reach Capitol Hill by 1 Feb.

Mr. Sutton waited almost a month beyond that deadline before deciding that the matter could wait no longer. A key factor in his decision is his hope that his warrant officer bill can be incorporated in the omnibus bill of amendments to the Career Compensation Act which Representative Paul Kilday (D-Tex) is slated to introduce shortly—probably this month.

At the time of the enactment of the Career Compensation legislation, Congressman Sutton and former Senator Francis Myers (D-Pa.) led a fight on the floor for more liberal pay provisions for warrant officers. Senator Myers was defeated in the last elections, which could mean that consideration of reforms in the warrant officer program by the Senate

Nat. Gd. Divs. to Japan

The Army's decision to send two National Guard divisions to Japan—the 40th Infantry Division of California and the 45th Infantry Division now at Camp Polk—General J. Lawton Collins' disclosure that two more National Guard divisions may be called to service this year, and the annual meeting of the Adjutants General Association in Washington, D. C., pointed up this week the need for formulation of a more definitive National Guard policy in the near future.

The Department of Defense said that the two National Guard divisions to be sent to Japan "in order to provide additional security for that country" are to be ready for movement in the latter part of March. The 40th is at Camp Cooke, Calif., and the 45th, at Camp Polk, La. The Army said it is the intention to keep these divisions intact in Japan for future

Marine Selection Board

A Marine selection board was convened 27 Feb. to consider regular Marine Corps officers for promotion to the rank of captain.

The tentative promotion zone carried in THE JOURNAL last week was altered slightly in the official announcement. The unrestricted zone begins with 1st Lt. Owen V. Gallentine and includes 1st Lt. Aubrey T. Hicks. The limited duty zone begins with 1st Lt. William D. Miears and includes 1st Lt. Kenneth M. Stayer.

Paul R. Joyce, the Marine Corps stated, is the last officer below the zone who is eligible for consideration for accelerated promotion.

The board is authorized to recommend 466 unrestricted and 16 limited duty first lieutenants for promotion. Members of the board are Col. Harold O. Deakin, president; Lieutenant Colonels Arthur R. Stacey, John E. Heles, George R. Newton, Jino J. D'Allessandro, Theodore F. Beeman, John E. Rentsch, Joseph H. Reinburg, and James W. Poindexter.

Selections are expected to be completed within four weeks.

Board Endorses AF Action on Promotion

A top-level Air Force group, which advises the Chief of Staff on Reserve and Air National Guard matters, has strongly endorsed temporary promotion policies following a detailed survey which concluded that charges of discrimination against non-Regulars are unfounded statistically.

In the words of the Air Staff Committee on National Guard and Reserve Policy, "the Air Force has followed the principle of promoting those best qualified" and "no ascertainable discrimination has been evident in promotions effected from 30 June 1947 to date."

The Committee noted "it is obvious that no one formula affecting promotions can be devised that is completely foolproof and will satisfy everybody," and added that "to insure the most efficient organization possible, it is fundamental that promotions be based primarily on the basis of the best qualified regardless of component affiliation."

The Committee praised the work of Brig. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF, Director of Personnel Planning, and his staff aides for their presentation of promotion data.

Statistics were presented to show that from 1 July 1949 to 1 Jan. 1951, the percentage of Regular officers to non-Regulars on active duty was in the ratio of 30.82 to 69.18 per cent, while the promotions were in the ratio, respectively, of 21.27 to 78.73 per cent—a marked proportional advantage for non-Regulars.

For the various ranks, the promotion table looked like this:

	Strength Ratio		Prom. Ratio
	Reg.	Non-Reg.	Reg.	Non-Reg.
Gens.	94.36	5.64	96.26	3.74
Col.	89.74	10.26	93.16	6.84
Lt. Col.	78.98	21.02	71.04	28.96
Maj.	58.25	41.75	49.92	50.08
Cpts.	29.12	70.88	11.39	88.61

Since 1 July, detailed statistics concerning the number of officers serving in each rank in the Air Force have been "restricted," but as of that date, the breakdown was as follows:

	Number		Percentage
	Reg.	Non-Reg.	Reg.	Non-Reg.
Gen.	221	6	97.36	2.64
Col.	1678	155	91.54	8.46
Lt. Col.	3126	704	81.62	18.38
Maj.	4655	2885	61.74	38.26
Capt.	6460	10835	37.35	62.65
1st Lt.	3096	15834	16.35	83.65
2d Lt.	874	3645	19.34	80.66

In the period from 1 July 1949 to 1 Jan. 1951, the Air Force promoted a total of 2504 Regular and 9270 non-Regular officers, as follows:

General officer rank, 103 Regulars and 4 non-Regulars; Colonel, 831 and 61; Lieutenant Colonel, 130 and 53; Major, 303 and 304; and Captain, 1137 Regulars and 8848 non-Regulars. Promotions of second lieutenant to first lieutenant are accomplished by major commands upon the completion of 18 months'

Bloomington, Ill., Daily Pantagraph—"While the Marine Corps is, and probably always will remain, an integral part of the Naval Service, its Fleet Marine Service is in general the only portion functioning under Navy command. The Corps itself is practically autonomous and is incorporated in the Naval Establishment primarily for convenience of organization. . . . American experience in Korea should make it clear . . . that the country needs a Marine Corps of substantial size and that the Joint Chiefs of Staff need the benefit of Marine experience in amphibious operations and close ground-air co-ordination in the field."

Washington Daily News—"During the war Mr. Churchill, in his communications with President Roosevelt, went by the code name of 'Former Naval Person.' Obviously, the 'former' was a little premature, and, just as obviously, he's not going to let Britain in any future war be referred to as 'former naval power.'"

Birmingham, Ala., Post-Herald—"The urgency of the situation is beyond question. The sooner UMST is put into effect the greater will be our national security and the stronger our voice for lasting world peace."

TOO MUCH BACK SEAT DRIVING

(Cartoon by Marcus from The New York Times of 25 Feb.)

New York Times—"Mr. Churchill is rightly accounted as one of our warmest and staunchest friends."

When he raises the question, therefore, of the propriety of naming an American commander for the naval forces of the North Atlantic nations he deserves more than passing notice. If we wound the just pride and earnest dignity of so loyal and devoted a comrade we have good reason for prompt and critical self-examination."

Topeka, Kans., State Journal—"Europe has had universal service and training for a long time, yet Europe is chronically diseased with war. Germany had it and lost. The system has done nothing whatever to further or insure peace, yet many of its American advocates promise such benefits here."

New York Herald Tribune—"As have many other Americans, General Moore left his duties at home to meet the enemy at close quarters, and, like many others, he gave his life in the struggle. It was typical of his devotion to his troops and his determination to be in the thick of things that he died in a helicopter crash during a front-line inspection tour. Although his long career of soldiering was spent in military offices and encampments as well as on the battlefield, he died as befits a great captain, at the head of his advancing troops."

THE WAR IN KOREA

SLOW, but steady progress was made this week by United Nations troops advancing northward on the central front in Korea. Late this week, tank-led American Marines captured the key town of Hoengsong.

Elements of the American Army 2d and 7th Divisions on the eastern sector of the central front drove the enemy from important ridges and hills and cut the vital lateral east-west highway, running from Kangnung in the east to Seoul in the west. This road was an important link in the Communist communications and supply network.

The United States 1st Marine Division took two hills west of Hoengsong in bayonet charges and hand-to-hand fighting. Later, in a flank attack they captured the town itself from which the Chinese defenders fled to the hills.

South Korean marines occupied a fourth island in Wonsan harbor and reported that morale among the Chinese and North Korean troops in the Wonsan area was very low and that desertions were numerous. This disaffection was said to be due to the heavy pounding to which the area has been subjected by Navy planes and surface vessels.

Maj. Gen. Hoge

On the west coast near Ongjin, five miles south of the 38th parallel, South Koreans launched a surprise commando raid, in which they killed a Communist brigade commander and about 20 other Red soldiers. They seized documents and equipment and then returned to their ships.

Interrogation of Red prisoners of war taken on all fronts reveals that the Chinese Communists plan to mount another major counter-offensive in the near future. The stories of the prisoners varied as to the size of the offensive. Most of them said that about 150,000 Red troops would participate in the new attack, but one Chinese Red said some 33 divisions, with a strength of 300,000, and 1,000 planes would be used.

8th Army Skeptical

Eighth Army officers are somewhat skeptical about these reports. They feel that recent losses of Red troops have been so heavy that an early resumption of a major Communist offensive is unlikely. They also believe that the Chinese lack the trained pilots to man 1,000 planes, even if Russia were to make that many aircraft available, which is extremely doubtful.

Maj. Gen. William M. Hoge, USA, recently in command of American forces in Trieste, is en route to Korea to take command of the IX Corps, succeeding Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Smith, USMC, who has been temporarily in command of the Corps since the sudden death of Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore, USA. General Moore, who only recently took command of the IX Corps, died of a heart attack following the crash of a helicopter in which he was a passenger. General Hoge had been assigned to command the VII Corps at Ft. Meade, Md., but this assignment was changed when General Moore's death made vacant the command of the IX Corps.

For the first time since late last November, when the Chinese Reds intervened in force in the Korean conflict, the United Nations troops in the immediate battle area now have a slight numerical advantage. It is estimated that the Allies have about 160,000 in the combat zone, while the Reds have fewer than 150,000 south of the 38th parallel. However, the Communists probably have 350,000 additional troops in northern Korea, and possibly as many as 700,000 available in or near Manchuria.

Elements of seven American divisions, four South Korean divisions and units of various Allied nations are engaged in the current limited offensive. American troops include the 1st Cavalry, the 2d, 3d, 7th, 24th and 25th Army Divisions and the 1st Marine Division. In addition there are supporting Corps and Army combat, supply and technical troops.

On the extreme western front in the I Corps sector action during the week was largely confined to minor patrol clashes. The Kimpo peninsula northwest of Seoul remained clear of the enemy, but was under sporadic artillery and mortar fire, which was answered by the long-range guns of the U. S. Heavy Cruiser St. Paul, operating off the west coast of Korea near Inchon.

Cross Han River

Allied patrols crossed the Han River and entered the suburbs of Seoul. They encountered sharp resistance and withdrew after skirmishes during which Red prisoners were taken.

The principal weight of the current Allied drive is on the central front where units are pressing forward in rugged terrain against increasing and at times stubborn resistance. On the west central front aggressive Allied patrols, moving through mud and melting snow, secured dominating hill and ridge positions, after determined opposition by Chinese Communist troops. Some enemy units were dispersed into the hill mass in eastern Korea, along uncharted roads and trails.

In the area east of Chipyong-ni British Commonwealth troops overcame heavy opposition to capture vital objectives. To the east American units knocked out enemy troops and advanced several miles across the important lateral highway. West of Hoengsong Chinese Communist outposts were forced to withdraw following a series of sharp clashes with Republic of Korea troops.

In the United States 24th Division sector a patrol encountered a small enemy force which employed small arms, automatic weapons and hand grenades. The patrol withdrew after which mortar fire was placed on the enemy.

Patrols in the 1st Cavalry Division sector uncovered enemy troops entrenched eight miles northeast of Yongpyong. Allied artillery fire was placed on the enemy position. An enemy battalion three miles northwest of Yongdu-ri forced an Allied patrol to withdraw.

A British patrol dispersed a small enemy force three miles southeast of Yongdu-ri. Elements of the South Korean 6th Division routed two Chinese Red companies west of Hoengsong. A small enemy attack in the same area was repulsed by small arms and artillery fire.

624,000 Casualties

It was announced this week that since opening of the Korean war an estimated 624,000 casualties have been inflicted on the enemy. The Chinese Reds lost 185,000 in battle casualties, and 21,000 in non-battle casualties, for a total of 206,000. Losses of the North Korean Communists were 242,000 battle casualties, 40,000 non-battle casualties, and 136,000 prisoners of war, for a total of 418,000.

These figures are estimates, except that the number of North Korean prisoners of war represents an actual count. No announcement was made of the number of Chinese Reds taken prisoner, but it is relatively small. However, during the past week the number of Chinese surrendering as individuals and in small groups has been increasing.

Total Americans listed as killed, wounded, and missing now amount to 50,675. No official estimate of South Korean losses has been given, but they are undoubtedly very large. Losses of most of the other United Nations troops in combat in Korea are relatively small, though French casualties in proportion to the number engaged are high.

For extraordinary courage in a bayonet charge that did much to stop the enemy counter-attack at Chipyong-ni last month the French contingent has been awarded the Presidential Distinguished Unit Citation. The presentation of the award was made in behalf of the President by Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Commanding General of the Eighth Army.

Allied Naval vessels this week continued their heavy bombardment of enemy installations on both the east and west coasts of Korea. Much of this fire was centered on the east coast port of Wonsan, where the guns of the U. S. Light Cruiser Manchester, the U. S. Destroyers Lind and Evans, and the American Patrol Frigates Sausalito, Gallup and Bisbee pounded railroad junctions, roads, troops and artillery positions.

A small force of South Koreans, under cover of Naval guns, was landed by a mine sweeper on the small island of Hwangto-do, off Wonsan. There was no opposition, and the landing party was warmly welcomed by the local inhabitants, who broke out a large South Korean flag.

Australian Destroyer Active

The Australian Destroyer Warramunga hit troop concentrations on the east coast near Kangnung, and then moved farther north to fire on targets west of Chuminjin. The American Destroyer English also fired on east coast targets.

On the west coast the U. S. Heavy Cruiser St. Paul neutralized an enemy column of troops moving west of Seoul, attacking with shells from her 8-inch guns. Buildings occupied by the enemy were set afire.

On the peninsula of Pyonggang-ni, northwest of Inchon on the west coast, Communist troop positions were hit by 4.5-inch shells fired by the British Destroyer Cossack.

Adverse weather during most of this week greatly decreased the tactical air support for ground troops, and reduced materially interdiction strikes on enemy installations. Nevertheless hundreds of missions were flown each day by Air Force, Navy and Marine flyers, and bombs were dropped on targets through holes in clouds, and by the use of radar aiming technique.

Marine aviators from the U. S. Light Carrier Bataan off the west coast of Korea dumped napalm, bombs and rockets on entrenched enemy troops near Hoengsong on the central front. Corsair fighters attacked 50 buildings in the same area, destroying large amounts of enemy supplies.

Panther Jets, Skyraiders, and Corsairs from the U. S. Carrier Princeton off the Korean east coast knocked out four enemy tanks and hit troop concentrations and bridges through a heavy overcast.

Other Navy flyers from the Carriers Princeton and Philippine Sea rocketed and bombed gun emplacements, bridges, warehouses and supply dumps. Air controllers reported that several hundred enemy troops were killed by Navy air attacks.

Air Strikes

Far East Air Force fighters and bombers flew through heavy weather to attack vital transportation targets and enemy ground troops.

In the Seoul area air strikes inflicted approximately 90 casualties on enemy troops. Nearly 300 enemy-occupied buildings were destroyed or damaged.

On the central front United States F-80 Shooting Star jets machine gunned and bombed Communist troops, assisting X Corps artillery in keeping the enemy from organizing definite defense lines north of Pangnim on the Hoengsong road. North Korean forces in this area were disorganized after the heavy air and artillery attacks.

United States B-29 medium bombers, based in Okinawa, dropped 160 tons of

Services' Welfare Needs

Ending over two years' activity on 28 Feb. because of Congressional decision not to appropriate it further funds, the President's Committee on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces this week reasserted the need for housing and essential community services for men and women of the Armed Forces.

The Committee, under the chairmanship of Mr. Frank L. Weil, in its final statement to the President, advocated Federal funds to aid defense communities in meeting their responsibilities to men and women in uniform.

The Committee recalled a report rendered in September 1950 which listed the urgency of action to alleviate problems of married personnel in these areas: housing, education for dependents, child care centers, medical care and hospitalization, public health and sanitation, family services, police protection and protection from profiteering, exorbitant rental charges and high food prices.

Also advocated was the establishment of a civilian advisory committee to the Secretary of Defense, to be similar to the World War II Joint Army and Navy Committee on Welfare and Recreation.

Citizens' Group Named

Meantime, on 26 Feb. the Secretary of Defense, General Marshall, announced that seven outstanding citizens have accepted his invitation to inspect Armed Services' training installations and, on the basis of their study, to advise him as to their adequacy and to suggest possible improvements.

The Committee will work with Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, Assistant Secretary of Defense for manpower and personnel.

The Citizens' Committee, of which Clarence Francis, Chairman of the Board, General Foods Corporation, is to be Chairman, will serve as the Citizens Advisory Committee on Armed Services Training Installations.

General Marshall stated that in coming weeks, the Committee members will visit military camps and bases of their own selection, and will have access to every training facility and activity. During its visits, the Committee will examine and inquire into the adequacy of physical plants, living standards, the health and welfare of personnel, the relationships of personnel in training to nearby communities and such other aspects of the training period as they think desirable. The Committee's study will cover the entire period from the time of recruit induction to conclusion of the recruit training period.

Gen. Marshall's Statement

Announcing formation of the Citizen's Committee, General Marshall stated:

"To make certain that the Armed Services have the benefit of the fullest citizen guidance and advice in developing their training facilities and personnel programs for the men and women in the active military service, I have asked these patriotic citizens, who are known for their independence of thought and action to make this study and to report to me their findings.

"The Committee will be completely independent of the Department of Defense and in its work will have full and free access to every part of the training program. Its members will have every opportunity to talk with individual men and women who are in training and receive, first hand, their reactions and suggestions."

In addition to Mr. Francis, members of the Citizens' Committee are:

Father John J. Cavanaugh, President, Notre Dame University, South Bend, Ind.; Erie Cocke, Jr., National Commander, the American Legion, Dawson, Ga.;

Dr. Harold Dodds, President, Princeton University;

Dr. Charles Mayo, the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.

David J. McDonald, Secretary-Treasurer, United Steel Workers of America, Pittsburgh, Pa.;

Mrs. Mary G. Roebeling, Chairman of the Board, Trenton Trust Company, Trenton, N. J.

Naval Reserve Training

Nearly 121,000 Naval Reservists, including 34,205 officers and 86,724 enlisted, took two-week tours of training duty in 1950.

Presentation of checks to the Services' relief organizations representing bequests in the will of the late Col. John Callan O'Laughlin, publisher and president of the Army and Navy Journal, Inc. Left to right: Mrs. Thruston Hughes, who represented the Army Relief Society; Mr. Joseph H. Himes, an executor of Colonel O'Laughlin's estate who presented the checks to Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall; Secretary Marshall, who in turn presented them to the representatives of the societies; Mr. Joseph P. Tumulty, Jr., the other executor of the estate; Maj. Gen. Howard C. Davison, USAF-Ret., Director of the Air Force Aid Society; and Vice Adm. V. R. Murphy, USN (Ret.), executive vice president of the Navy Relief Society.

FINANCIAL bequests willed to the Services' relief organizations by the late Col. John Callan O'Laughlin, publisher and president of the Army and Navy Journal, Inc., were presented at a ceremony held 28 Feb. in the office of the Secretary of Defense, General of the Army George C. Marshall.

The three checks, totalling $17,390.50, were presented to Secretary Marshall by the Hon. Joseph H. Himes, former member of Congress, on behalf of Colonel O'Laughlin's estate of which he and Mr. Joseph P. Tumulty, Jr., are the executors. Mr. Himes spoke of Colonel O'Laughlin's devotion to the Armed Services and the personnel that compose them and of his wish that the relief organizations benefit from his estate.

Secretary Marshall, in accepting the checks and turning them over to the organizations, paid special tribute to Colonel O'Laughlin whom he recalled he knew well. Colonel O'Laughlin's action in remembering the relief societies, he said, was further evidence of his patriotism, character, and interest in the welfare of the Armed Services. The Secretary said he was particularly proud to be a participant in the ceremony.

The checks were accepted by Mrs. Thruston Hughes for the Army Relief Society, Vice Adm. V. R. Murphy, USN (Ret.), for the Navy Relief Society, and Maj. Gen. Howard C. Davison, USAF-Ret., for the Air Force Aid Society.

Others present at the ceremony included Lt. Col. Daniel J. Andersen, JAGD, legal representative of the Army Relief Society; Mr. M. Joseph Matan, of Mr. Tumulty's law office; Mrs. Dorothy C. Brown, secretary of the Army and Navy Journal, Inc., and advertising director of the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL; Mr. LeRoy Whitman, Editor and vice president of THE JOURNAL; and Col. Francis V. Fitzgerald, USA-Ret., of THE JOURNAL's editorial staff.

Study Airborne Problems

The Army Airborne Center, Ft. Bragg, N. C., was the assembly point last week of this country's top-flight authorities on airborne warfare.

Representatives of the Office of Secretary of Defense, Joint Chiefs of Staff, Department of the Army, Army Field Forces, and many service schools and colleges attended the series of Airborne conferences conducted by Maj. Gen. W. M. Miller, USA, Director of the Army Airborne Center.

Included in the week-long conferences were detailed presentations of views developed by the Army Airborne Center on such subjects as types of airborne operations; command structure in airborne operations; aircraft requirements; present and future requirements for airborne equipment; and logistical support of an air-head operation. Immediately following these presentations by Army Airborne Center officers, conferees split up into seminars discussing their current fields of interest as related to the airborne program. Demonstrations of the latest techniques and equipment in airborne employment were observed by this unique group of World War II and post-war Airborne experts, largest and most representative group of its kind ever gathered in one spot.

Heading the list of distinguished participants were names as Lt. Gen. J. M. Swing, Commandant, Army War College; Lt. Gen. John W. Leonard, V-Corps Commanding General; Maj. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Commanding General, 11th Airborne Division; Maj. Gen. James M. Gavin, Weapons System, Evaluation Board; Maj. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, Commanding General, 82nd Airborne Division; Maj. Gen. R. C. Graham, Commanding General, Fort Lee, Va.; Brig. Gen. Robert M. Young, Assistant Division Commanding General, 82nd Airborne Division; Brig. Gen. Pearson Menoher, Chief of Staff, V-Corps.

Service Tax Exemptions

Although five Senators, four Democrats and one Republican, are its sponsors, the bill which would provide a special $600 income tax exemption for all military personnel, will not be acted upon immediately by the Senate.

This is because of the nature of the legislation. Bills pertaining to taxes must originate in the House—a fact that was well-known to the Senators introducing the Service income tax exemption measure.

However, as explained by an aide of Senator Lehman (D-NY), it was the intention of the Senators to give the Committee on Finance an opportunity to consider this proposal when the new over-all income tax bill comes to it from the House.

Also, there is the possibility that in view of the introduction of the $600 exemption bill, the House Ways and Means Committee, in considering the new income tax legislation, will take action on the special provisions sought for military personnel.

It is known that Senators Lehman, Humphrey (Minn.), Kilgore (W.Va.) and Magnuson (Wash.), Democrats, and Senator Hendrickson, (R-NJ) feel strongly that the financial burden of persons in uniform must be eased and that they will fight hard for a special military exemption, even if the House and Senate Committees should fail to take action.

Manpower Debate

Warned by Senator Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.), chairman of the Armed Services Preparedness subcommittee that "unpreparedness is an invitation to disaster," the Senate has begun the floor debate on the Universal Military Training and Service Act, while the House Armed Services Committee this week heard additional testimony from top military officials regarding the urgency of this legislation.

In testimony before the House Committee, General Omar N. Bradley, USA, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, declared that "if we are to win the struggle that is with us now, and which lies ahead of us for many years to come, we must provide the means of maintaining 3,500,000 men in our active Armed Forces. At the same time," continued General Bradley, "we must solve the longer range problem of building a sound mobilization base for the expansion of our forces. It must include trained reserves that can be called quickly for an all-out effort in the event of an all-out war."

In the matter of increased need for speed, General Bradley noted that in the future National Guard and Reserve units will have to be ready for action much more quickly than is the case now.

"My own opinion," said General Bradley, "is that they should be ready to fight in one to three months." He noted that "it used to be all right for us to wait nine months to a year before National Guard or Reserve units were ready for combat duty with the Army," but emphasized that "now some National Guard and Reserve units must be ready in 30 days and many more should be combat effective in three months."

This requirement cannot be met, said General Bradley, unless the units are filled with trained and qualified men, who would come from operation of a UMTS program.

That the Armed Forces might be expanded beyond the 3,500,000 strength was indicated by General J. Lawton Collins, USA, Chief of Staff, who said such a development was "by no means unlikely."

In a letter to Senator Johnson, emphasizing the Department's desire that the minimum age for induction be set at 18 instead of a proposed 18½ years of age, Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall said "we are hopeful that it will not be necessary to make any upward revision in our present 3,500,000 figure but there is no certainty the figure will not have to go higher, in a situation as tense as the one that now confronts us."

Stressing the need for passage of the UMTS bill, General Marshall wrote Senator Johnson:

"We feel that the Universal Military Training and Service bill recommended by your committee, even though it differs in many respects from our original draft, will be a historic contribution to our security. It will enable us to fulfill our immediate need for an expanded combat force, while at the same time assuring for the first time a dependable flow of trained young manpower into the National Guard and our other reserve components.

"The vital gain in the bill is that it establishes an enduring base for our military preparedness. It will safeguard our ability to maintain our strength over the years at a cost that is within the capacity of our economy to bear and that reinforces our democratic traditions in all its aspects."

demolition bombs on vital supply and communications centers at Hamhung and Chongjin. Due to poor visibility the bombs were dropped by radar.

For the first time in several weeks enemy jet fighters made an aggressive attack on Allied planes. Four American jet fighters were attacked near Sinuiju by 8 Russian-built MIG-15s. After a ten-minute engagement the enemy planes were driven off. None of our planes were hit.

Subsequently 12 MIGs attacked four B-29 medium bombers near Sinanju. Two of our planes were slightly damaged and three of the enemy planes were hit, with one possibly destroyed.

New Army Division

As General J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, this week disclosed the possibility that two more National Guard divisions may be called to service this year, the Army on 28 Feb. announced reactivation of the 1st Armored Division at Ft. Hood, Tex., under command of Brig. Gen. Bruce C. Clark, who has been commanding the Second Constabulary Brigade at Munich, Germany, since August 1949.

This will make Ft. Hood the home of two armored divisions, since the 2d Armored Division under Maj. Gen. Wilston B. Palmer is also quartered there.

Reactivation of the 1st Armored Division, organized at Ft. Knox, Ky., on 15 July 1940 and inactivated in April 1946 after a distinguished record in the European Theater during World War II, will raise to 12 the number of Regular Army tactical divisions, plus the six National Guard tactical divisions. There are nine Army training divisions—an overall total of 27 divisions, listed as follows with their commanding officers.

New Army Badges

Although not yet ready for distribution, the Army has authorized a silver star to be added to the Combat Infantryman Badge and the Medical Badge for infantrymen and medical corpsmen who have seen action in both World War II and the fighting in Korea.

Explaining the award of the new badge, the Army stated:

"The design of the badges is unchanged for a first award, won either in World War II or in Korea. A silver star is added to the basic design for the second award of the badges.

"An Infantryman who won the Combat Infantryman Badge for the first time while fighting in Korea will receive the basic design which was in effect in World War II, a polished silver musket on a rectangular, blue background in front of an oak wreath of oxidized silver.

"An Infantryman who has previously won the Combat Infantryman Badge in World War II, and again is awarded the Badge for fighting in Korea, will receive one with a silver star added at the top center of the oak wreath.

"The same will apply to the awarding of the Medical Badge.

"The Medical Badge is of oxidized silver consisting of a stretcher placed horizontally behind a caduceus with a cross of the Geneva Convention at the junction of the wings, and enclosed by an elliptical wreath. A silver star at the top center of the wreath immediately above the cross is authorized for a second award.

"The Combat Infantryman Badge is awarded to Infantry officers and enlisted men and warrant officers with an Infantry Military Occupational Specialty for satisfactory performance of duty while assigned as a member of an Infantry regiment or Infantry battalion during any period such unit was engaged in active ground combat.

"The Medical Badge is awarded to Medical Department officers, warrant officers and enlisted men with a Medical Department Military Occupational Specialty for satisfactory performance of medical duties while a member of the medical detachment of an Infantry regiment or Infantry battalion engaged in active ground combat.

"The badges do not represent individual feats of valor, but are awarded in recognition of exemplary performance and a high degree of proficiency in tasks characteristic of the individual's type of service. They are worn above the left breast pocket of the uniform, above medals or service ribbons."

Reassign General Officers

General Headquarters in Tokyo announces that in conformance with the redistribution of combat experienced officers, Brig. Gen. Andrew C. Tychsen, chief of staff, IX Corps, and Brig. Gen. Frank A. Allen, jr., assistant division commander, 1st Cavalry Division, were transferred to Headquarters, Japan Logistical Command, and Brig. Gen. Elwyn D. Post, commanding general, Yokohama Command, has been transferred to Headquarters Eighth Army.

Uniform For Army Women

Effective 1 March, members of the Army Nurse Corps, Women's Army Corps and Women's Medical Specialist Corps are authorized to wear the new wool taupe uniform, designed by Hattie Carnegie. Until next fall, it must be procured commercially.

Official authorization for the wearing of the new garb came following several months of field testing, during which selected women officers and enlisted women wore the uniform.

The uniform may be worn for service and semi-dress, winter and summer, by any officer when not on duty with troops and by enlisted women as prescribed by installation commanders.

The taupe uniform may be purchased commercially but will not be available for issue or sale from Quartermaster stocks until next fall. Members of the ANC and WMSC ordered to active military duty and assigned to an Army medical installation who do not have the old uniform are to procure the new one at the earliest practicable date. They are not required to purchase the old service uniform in the interim as they will wear the hospital uniform on duty. To all other personnel, the purchase and wear of the new uniform is optional.

With the exception of shoes, no items of the current uniform may be worn with the new uniform. A long wear-out period will be allowed before it will be obligatory to wear the new uniform at all times when on duty.

The summer service uniform, a one-piece dress made of beige taupe cotton chambray broadcloth, is in production now, with delivery set for the spring. This uniform will be issued on a priority basis starting 15 April, those in tropical and semi-tropical climates getting it first.

Seek Data on USMA Grads

Volume IX (Supplement 1940-1950) of Gen. Cullum's Biographical Register of the Officers and Graduates of the United States Military Academy is now under preparation at West Point. This volume will include the records of all those graduated since 1940, to include the Class of 1950, and will continue the records of all other graduates.

Since this ten-year period, 1941-1950, includes World War II and the war service of the thousands of graduates who served therein, Volume IX of the Register will be by far one of the most important yet undertaken. In scope and detail the Register has no counterpart as a publication. For many years its successive editions have served as a standard reference in many agencies of Government, including the Departments of the Army and Air Force; in some of the best public libraries of the nation, including the Library of Congress; and, of course, in the private libraries of many West Pointers and friends of the Academy.

Since the best source of information about a graduate's record is the graduate himself, a comprehensive form to obtain this information was mailed last Fall by the Superintendent, U.S.M.A., to every graduate whose address was then known at West Point. The response to this request of the Superintendent has been most gratifying. Many graduates all over the world have completed their forms and mailed them to West Point. More than 7,000 individual records, including many from Korea, have already been received and are being processed at the Academy.

But in these times of sudden changes in the addresses of many officers, the Superintendent's request has probably failed to reach a substantial number of graduates whose records are needed to complete the book. A note stating his present mailing address, from any West Point graduate who has not yet received the Superintendent's request, to The Editor, Cullum's Biographical Register, West Point, N. Y., will bring a form to him by return mail.

This edition of the Register must soon go to press. In these circumstances, prompt action by each graduate is essential to insure inclusion in the book of his complete record for the period 1941-1950.

Competitive Tour Appts.

Army officials reported this week that a new list of successful competitive tour candidates for Regular appointments is slated for announcement next month.

Selections will be made from a group of 821 non-Regular officers who began their tour in January 1950.

Military Academy Sports

Army lost its final home basketball game last week-end to the University of Pittsburgh, 48-44.

Suffering from a four-game losing streak, the Army cagers trailed by seven points at the half, but rallied in the second half to a one-point lead, 43-42. In the closing minutes of the game, Pitt went ahead again with a field goal, closely followed by a successful free throw and a second field goal. At 47-44, Pitt froze the ball and on a penalty against Army sank a one-pointer for the final score. Army's Tixier and Weaver each made 11 points to tie for high score for their team.

Also at West Point, Army's swimmers defeated Fordham 47-28; the gymnastic team won over Temple 53-40; the squash racquets team beat Trinity 8-1; the wrestlers won against Yale 19-11, and the Army rifle team beat the U. S. Coast Guard Academy 1424-1398.

The undefeated University of Maryland boxing team outpointed Army 5-3. Cadet Don Speirs, fighting in the 125-pound class, thrilled spectators by knocking out his opponent, but Maryland took a decision in the 135-pound class when Army forfeited, and was victorious in the light heavy and heavyweight classes.

Win Battlefield Commissions

Six men of the U. S. Army 65th Infantry Regiment have won battlefield commissions in the rank of second lieutenant. They are Victor M. Naves; Federico Pageni; Eladio Lopez Ayala; William Dominguez; Ignazio Garcia; and David Stover, jr.

"Air Carriers will be used!"

Air transportation now is issued for official military travel (for one or hundreds) strictly on a basis of service and economy. Revised regulations now omit designation of any other mode of transportation as "preferential."

"Air carriers will be used when their service meets the military requirements more satisfactorily than do rail or bus carriers." (Paragraph 3c(2) of Joint Regulations on Passenger Transportation, SR 55-105-5, N-MC SR1, AFR 75-38).

Air Travel enables the official traveler to meet short deadlines, adds to his comfort and convenience, helps him get things done. Air Travel also saves costs of per diem allowances, or extra meals and sleeping accommodations. The cost of flying—even without considering dollar savings in the traveler's productive time—is only about the same as rail with pullman. It's often less!

Today the military requirements are urgent... FLY!

Flag Officer Changes

The President has nominated Rear Adm. Laurance T. DuBose, USN, for the grade of Vice Admiral while serving as Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Personnel, the Navy announced on 1 Mar.

Admiral DuBose has been ordered to relieve Vice Adm. John W. Roper, USN, as Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Personnel and Chief of the Bureau of Naval Personnel. Admiral Roper will revert to his permanent grade of Rear Admiral on being relieved by Admiral DuBose in late March or early April.

The Navy also announced that Rear Adm. Kenmore M. McManes, USN, has assumed duty as Commander, Fleet Activities, Yokosuka, Japan. He relieved Rear Adm. Herber H. McLean, USN, who has reported to the Chief of Naval Operations in Washington, D. C.

Changes of duty for other flag officers announced this week by the Navy Department were as follows:

Vice Adm. Felix B. Stump is being detached as Commander, Air Force, Atlantic Fleet, and is going to a sea billet in the same rank. Vice Adm. John J. Ballentine, present commander of the U. S. Sixth Fleet, will relieve him.

Admiral Ballentine will be relieved by Vice Adm. Matthias B. Gardner who is coming to the command from another sea command.

In March, Rear Adm. Wendell G. Switzer will be detached from a sea command and will report as aide and chief of staff to the Commander in Chief, Atlantic Fleet. He relieves Rear Adm. Thomas S. Combs who will become chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics in April.

Admiral Combs is relieving Rear Adm. Alfred M. Pride who is going to a sea command.

Rear Adm. Charles D. Wheelock will be detached, about 1 March, from duty in the Bureau of Ships in Washington. He will become the bureau's inspector general with headquarters at Treasure Island, San Francisco, Calif.

In March or April Rear Adm. Thomas B. Brittain will be detached as Commander, Amphibious Training Command, Atlantic Fleet, and will assume a sea command. Admiral Brittain will be relieved by Rear Adm. Augustus J. Wellings, vice commander of the Military Sea Transport tation Service at Washington, D. C. No relief has been designated for him.

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

Rear Admiral H. D. Baker is coming from a sea billet to relieve Rear Adm. George H. Fort as Assistant Chief of Naval Operations, and chairman, Ship Characteristics Board. No new billet has been announced for Admiral Fort.

Rear Admiral George F. Yoran, SC, who has been assistant chief of Naval Material, and director of the Procurement Policy Division, Washington, D. C., is reporting as director, Cost Inspection Service of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts.

Court Martial Charges

The Navy this week disclosed the specific charges for which Navy Capt. George L. Hansen was recently tried by court martial.

Former commanding officer of the Naval Receiving Station at Charleston, S. C., Captain Hansen was convicted of "improper use of government materials and employment of Naval personnel." The case is currently being reviewed by the Navy Secretary.

Captain Hansen was charged with "conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline," "knowingly and wilfully applying to his own uses property of the United States intended for the Naval Service thereof," and "knowingly and wilfully misappropriating property of the United States intended for the Naval Service thereof."

Under the first charge, specifications stated that Captain Hansen "wilfully, knowingly and without proper authority" caused six Navy enlisted men to work on his privately owned house and premises, then under construction, and that he used a government vehicle "for his personal convenience, without permission from proper authority."

Specifications under the second charge relate that Captain Hansen used government automobiles on several occasions "without proper authority."

Charge three specifications state that the Captain misappropriated paint, paint brushes, varnish, turpentine, paint remover, several smaller items, and six truck-loads of used lumber for "his own use."

Proficiency Markings

The Marine Corps revealed this week that some Reservists now on active duty "have received unusually low proficiency markings as members of Organized Reserve units prior to having been called to active duty," and that it has ordered commanding officers to disregard such markings under certain conditions.

A Marine Corps Memorandum stated, "These markings, in some instances, are at considerable variance with present performance, and under current regulations... might result in certain reservists being issued general discharge certificates even though performance while on active duty has been of high caliber."

The Memorandum directed that "in order to prevent injustices being done to such reservists upon discharge, commanding officers will disregard markings of Reserve units without reference to this Headquarters, if the reservist's active duty proficiency markings warrant an honorable discharge."

Marine Exam Waivers

Waivers for promotion tests, authorized for Fleet Marine Force combat personnel, have been extended to include Korean evacuees hospitalized during the period 8-31 Jan., if they were physically unable to take the January 1951 tests, the Marine Corps has announced.

Navy Mine Force

A separate command organization for mine forces in the Pacific has been established with the appointment of a Commander Mine Forces, U. S. Pacific Fleet, under Rear Adm. John M. Higgins, USN.

The Pacific Fleet Mine Force was disestablished at the end of World War II. The newly organized Mine Force reestablishes under one command, all ships of the Pacific Fleet primarily engaged in mine warfare.

The formation of Admiral Higgins' command emphasizes the increased importance the Navy is placing on mine-sweeping and mining techniques in the Pacific Ocean areas. United Nations naval experiences in the current Korean conflict have stressed the need for accelerated development in this field of naval warfare.

With Capt. A. L. Maher, USN, reporting as Chief of Staff, the headquarters of Commander Mine Force, Pacific will consist of a large staff of officers and men. At present this staff organization is in its formative stage, with officers and men still reporting for duty.

Prior to assuming command of Mine Forces, Pacific, Admiral Higgins was in charge of the Naval Gunfire Support Group during the amphibious landings at Pohang, Korea, as Commander Cruiser Division Five. For his direction of United Nations naval bombardment action at Inchon before and during the UN invasion at Inchon, he was awarded the Silver Star by the Department of the Army.

On 10 Nov. 1950 he assumed additional duties as Commander Minesweeping Force, Western Pacific. While acting in that command as well as Commander Naval Support Group, East Coast Korea, and Commander Cruiser Division Five, he supported and directed the mine-sweeping operations at Wonsan, Iwon, Songjin, and Hungnam. Upon the completion of the redeployment of UN troops from Hungnam, Rear Admiral Higgins was detached from duties as Commander Cruiser Division Five and activated the command of Commander Mine Force, U. S. Pacific Fleet.

Navy Officer Changes

Capt. W. W. Wilbourne, USN, has reported for duty as Operations Officer on the staff of Rear Adm. John M. Higgins, USN, Commander Mine Force Pacific at Pearl Harbor, T. H. Previously, Captain Wilbourne was head of the administrative command department of the U. S. Naval School, General Line, Monterey, Calif. Other staff officers who have reported recently at the Pearl Harbor headquarters of Command Mine Force, U. S. Pacific Fleet are Lt. Comdr. Stuart C. Jones, USN, as head of the Maintenance and Logistics Department; Lt. Comdr. Max A. Smith, USNR, Operations Department; and Lt. Leslie E. Lo Baugh, USN, Staff Supply Officer.

Comdr. Philip J. McNamara, MC, USN, Assistant Chief of Surgery, Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md., has been transferred to the Staff, Commander, Sixth Fleet.

Ens. Barbara Dawn Harris, USN, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. L. Marshall Harris, MC, USN, has reported to the U. S. Naval Communication Station, Norfolk, Va. for duty. Captain Harris is the Chief of the Obstetrics and Gynecology department at the Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md.

Third DFC to Lt. Swinburne

A gold star in lieu of the third Distinguished Flying Cross has been awarded to Lt. Harry W. Swinburne, jr., USN. The award presented by Rear Adm. Ernest W. Litch, USN, Commander Fleet Air Hawaii, at the Barbers Point Naval Air Station, Hawaii, was for "Meritorious achievement" when Lieutenant Swinburne was a helicopter pilot attached to the cruiser USS Helena.

Naval Academy Sports

U. S. Naval Academy varsity teams lost three out of five sports contests last weekend, as the Navy plebes piled up five victories in as many events.

The varsity hoopsters were battered 87-62 by a strong Columbia U. team which chalked up its 19th victory for the season and its 28th consecutive win against Navy. High scorer for the sailors was Pat Corrigan with 13 points. The plebe basketball team ended an undefeated season with a 84-44 conquest of Admiral Farragut Academy. Midshipman Jack Clune was high scorer with 11.

In New York, Navy's unbeaten fencing team took its seventh straight meet by beating New York University 20-7. The plebe fencers, also unbeaten, defeated Penn Charter School of Philadelphia 17-10 to end their season with a string of six victories.

The varsity pistol team won its second seasonal meet by trimming the Monumental Rifle and Pistol Club of Baltimore, 1,329-1,284. High scorer for the Navy was Dan Anthony with 274.

Both the varsity mat and swimming teams lost against their opponents. The wrestlers were defeated 24-5 by Penn State, and the swimming team was edged 41-34 by Rutgers at New Brunswick. Boots Johnson of Navy set a new Rutgers pool record by swimming the 200-yard backstroke in 2:19. The old mark was 2:22.3. Navy's Jan Vandersluis took firsts in both the 220 and 440-yard freestyles. At Annapolis, the plebe wrestlers defeated Mercersburg Academy 31-5, and the plebe swimming team won against Wyoming (Pa.) Seminary 48-27.

Capt. Albert Harold Rooks, USN, (deceased), who, as Commanding Officer of the cruiser USS Houston, gallantly fought his ship to the end and died on 28 Feb. 1942, with 513 members of his crew, was honored during ceremonies at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., on 25 Feb.

Admiral Thomas C. Hart, USN-Ret, former Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy and former U. S. Senator from Connecticut, made the dedication address and unveiled two bronze plaques in honor of Captain Rooks during ceremonies in historic Memorial Hall. Captain Rooks was serving under Admiral Hart, who was then Commander of the Asiatic Fleet and Commander in Chief of Allied Naval Forces in the East with Headquarters in Java, at the time of the action for which he was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

MISSING IN ACTION

THE JOURNAL has been advised that an item published in the 3 Feb. issue pertaining to the award to Col. Allan D. MacLean of the first bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to the Silver Star Medal and the Distinguished Flying Cross is misleading. Colonel MacLean was decorated prior to his being listed as a casualty.

Colonel MacLean was first reported "Killed in Action," but two days after receipt of this message, his wife, Mrs. Dora

B. MacLean of 1720 South Kingsley Drive, Los Angeles, Calif., was notified that Colonel MacLean's status was changed to "Missing in Action."

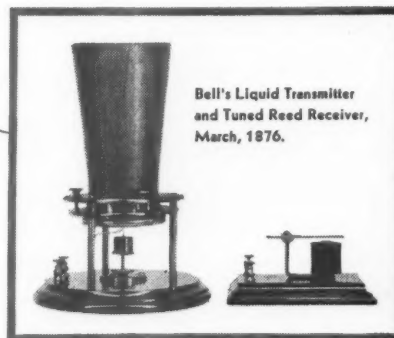

THE JOURNAL regrets that as a result of delayed transmittal from the Far East of word concerning his decorations for heroism in combat, the story in the 3 Feb. issue was misleading.

75th Anniversary of the Birth of the Telephone

1876 ★ 1951

Bell's Liquid Transmitter
and Tuned Reed Receiver,
March, 1876.

Suppose the telephone had never been invented

Have you ever thought what the world and your life would be like without the telephone?

If you wanted to talk to relatives or friends — if you wanted to order from a store — if you needed to summon a doctor or a policeman in an emergency — there would be no way you could do it in a hurry. What now takes only a few seconds or minutes would often take hours and cost you far more than a telephone call.

Each year the telephone becomes more useful to the people and more vital to the prosperity and security of the Nation. Today's tremendous job of production and defense could not be carried on without it.

There are twice as many Bell telephones as there were only ten years ago. They are here and ready because the Bell System kept right on building and improving to meet the country's needs.

Never in the history of the telephone has it been so valuable to so many people as right now.

AF Special Consultants

Appointment of Don G. Mitchell, president of Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., as a special consultant to Under Secretary of the Air Force John A. McCone, was announced this week.

Mr. Mitchell will assist the Under Secretary and the Air Staff in procurement of electronic equipment and components under the expanded Air Force procurement program, and in developing means for increasing the number of suppliers of electronic equipment.

Maj. Gen. C. R. Smith, USAFR, president of American Airlines, who returned recently to active duty, is serving as Deputy for Procurement to Under Secretary McCone. He will be primarily concerned with production and procurement problems under the expanded program. During World War II General Smith was Deputy Chief of Staff of the Air Transport Command.

Navy Honors Air Officer

Maj. Edward H. Connor, a student of the Regular course, Air Command and Staff School, Maxwell AFB, Ala., recently was awarded the Navy Gold Star in lieu of the Air Medal, sixth award. Presentation ceremonies took place in the office of Col. Douglas E. Williams, director, Regular course, Air Command and Staff School.

The decoration was for "meritorious achievement for participating in aerial flights in the Korean theater during the period 19 Aug. to 13 Oct. 1950." The citation accompanying Major Connor's award stated that "as a pilot of a Jet Fighter plane, he participated in ten strike missions over enemy territory."

Major Connor was on duty as exchange officer with the Navy from October 1949 to December 1950.

Recall of Colonels

The Air Force has reemphasized its policy that all individual recalls to active duty in the grade of colonel, including colonels who hold mobilization assignments, must be approved by the Director of Military Personnel.

It has been noted recently that several inactive colonels in the Air Force Reserve have taken steps to sever business connections upon informal assurance that they would be recalled to active duty. In some cases, subsequently the recall action has been rejected by the Director of Military Personnel following review of records.

Air Academy Sites

Progress is being made toward establishment of an Air Force Academy. A Site Selection Board has narrowed the choice to seven locations.

However, following selection of a single site for the Air Force Academy, authority for its construction must be obtained from Congress. Presumably the elimination of political considerations by the recommendation of a specific site for the institution would facilitate action on Capitol Hill.

In accordance with previously announced plans, the architectural engineering firm of Holabird and Root and Burgee of Chicago, Ill., will give six of these seven sites a detailed survey. Complete information is available on Randolph Air Force Base, one of the seven sites, and a detailed survey of that location will not be required.

The sites are: California—Camp Beale, near Marysville; Colorado—site near Colorado Springs; Indiana—site near Madison; North Carolina—site near Charlotte; Texas—(a) site near Grapevine; (b) site in Grayson County; (c) Randolph AFB.

The Board is headed by General Carl Spaatz, former Chief of Staff of the Air Force. The other members are Dr. Bruce Hopper, a special consultant, on loan from Harvard University as educational advisor; Lt. Gen. Hubert R. Harmon, Senior Air Force Member of the Military Staff Committee of the United Nations, and Brig. Gen. Harold L. Clark, Board Secretary is Lt. Col. Arthur E. Boudreau.

MATS Conference

Forty-one personnel officers of the Military Air Transport Services arrived in Washington this week from MATS bases throughout the world to attend a personnel conference at MATS headquarters, Andrews AFB.

Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, USAF, MATS Commander, in addressing the gathering on 27 Feb., emphasized the responsibility of all personnel officers toward young airmen who are being assigned to MATS. He also stressed the necessity for maintaining a vigorous officer evaluation program through the use of Effectiveness Reports. He described the total personnel management job as creating and maintaining a fully effective working force.

Matters covered during the conference concerned such subjects as the new military justice code which goes into effect on 31 May, personnel services, MATS expansion through ordering into the active military service members of reserve components, and problems concerning young airmen.

Officers who attended the conference included directors of personnel of MATS headquarters; Continental, Atlantic and Pacific Divisions; Airways and Air Communications Service, Air Rescue Service, Air Weather Service, Flight Service; and personnel officers of MATS Navy transport squadrons. All MATS wings and separate groups in the command were represented.

Commands Air Division

Col. Thomas W. Steed commands the newly activated 4th Air Division at Barksdale AFB, La.

Assigned to the new air division are the 91st Strategic Reconnaissance Wing, commanded by Col. Henry K. Mooney; the 301st Bomb Wing, Col. Horace M. Wade commanding; and the new air base group with Col. George L. Robinson as base commander.

Gen. Smart Gets New Post

Brig. Gen. Jacob E. Smart, USAF, became vice commander of the Eastern Air Defense Force at Stewart AFB, N. Y., on 1 March. General Smart, former commander of EADF's 32d Air Division (Defense), succeeds Brig. Gen. George R. Acheson, USAF, who has been appointed to command the new Central Air Defense Force with headquarters at Kansas City, Mo.

Airmen Promotions

The Air Force has authorized the advancement of 21,930 airmen to non-commissioned ranks during March, of which 1,855 will be master sergeant, 3,570 to technical sergeant, 6,505 to staff sergeant and 10,000 to sergeant.

Would Cut Service Pay

At a time when families of military personnel are being subjected to unusually high living expenses as a result of sudden transfers occasioned by the current emergency, lack of adequate housing and prolonged separation of husbands and dependents, the Denver Post has come out editorially for reductions in military pay.

This editorial, brought to the attention of THE JOURNAL by a subscriber overseas, has brought an illuminating response from an Army wife who is also an Army daughter and an Army mother. The text of the editorial and excerpts from her letter are published herewith.

The Editorial

"In a time of national emergency all the people of our nation should be called upon to make sacrifices in as equal a fashion as possible.

"That's why it is hard to agree with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower when he says career soldiers should get high pay but citizen soldiers should get low pay.

"By and large, the job of the career soldier in peace time is a pretty soft one. He has a reasonably high salary and he gets a great number of extras that other Americans don't get. He gets the lowest prices by buying his food and other goods on the post, too.

"That is as it should be. Those men who 'have it soft' during peace time are the ones who are called upon first to give their lives in war time. No American should begrudge them a good existence under peaceful conditions.

"Yet in war time, why should they not be called upon to make the same sacrifices that other soldiers make?

"Since we are about to add tremendously to the number of men under arms we should give serious consideration to cutting costs where we can. One place those costs might be cut is in pay of our fighting men.

"Certainly it seems unfair, but it is not as unfair as it looks. First of all, there is the question of sacrifice in time of peril. We do not know how long we will be in peril. We do not know how long we may have to support a tremendous war machine.

"Second, though, is the simple fact that trained soldiers always get upped a grade or two during the war period. So if you make a major of the lieutenant or a sergeant major of the corporal during the peril period, he is still getting more pay, albeit not as much as the sergeant major got before the emergency began.

"That's why it seems like a good idea to cut soldier, sailor and marine salaries a bit, and to cut special subsidies such as 'flight pay.' It would save the taxpayers a considerable sum when they really need some saving."

The Reply

Following are pertinent comments regarding the foregoing editorial from the wife of an Army officer.

"None of us questions the necessity for sacrifice on the part of everyone in our Country in time of emergency, but I, for one, protest violently, that the Armed Forces should always be the ones to make the major portion of that contribution.

"As the wife of one of the men 'who had had it easy in peace time' I should like to point out some fallacies that have become popular. For 17 years out of the past 20, it has been necessary for me to work to supplement my husband's Army pay, in order to live in a decent degree of comfort. (He was a Lieutenant for 13 of those years.) During those 20 years my husband has been able to take a real vacation only four times. Yes, on paper he was entitled to 30 days of leave each year, but somehow it never works out that way. During the past 20 years we have been separated for 8 years, due to war, maneuvers, and change of station. For 10 years my son and I have not had one cent of free dental work done in army hospital clinics. It was not available. For five years it was necessary to keep our son in boarding school, either because the public schools available were poor, or quarters were not available, and he had to live somewhere. Free medical care was not available during a large portion of that period, which meant civilian hospitals on four occasions, plus high consultant fees. For two years my husband commanded a glider outfit, without one cent of extra pay, until Congress, prodded into it, finally got around to granting a bonus for that hazardous type of service.

"As for the savings at Post Exchanges and Commissaries, the local merchants, banding together, have seen to that. There is no such thing any more. For the past three years, I have from choice, patronized the chain stores, because they were cheaper.

"It is fantastic that the men who must fight our wars, must also pay for them. The services have already taken a large cut in pay through the discontinuance of the $1,500 tax exemption and now our friend in Denver recommends further cut in pay, so that the sacrifices shall be equal. The casualty lists from Korea are a continuous heartbreak for all of us, and if everyone not in combat were taxed 92% to pay the costs, it would never balance the books for those who have already paid with their lives, or with battle injuries.

"When we need legal or medical advice we usually consult the best trained talent available. So it should be in time of war, with the profession of Arms. The fact that each year the services lose some of their best men, is ample proof that wide discrepancies exist in salary scales."

Plans for New Planes

The new B-52 heavy jet bomber will be put into production immediately, with the first deliveries to be made before the end of 1951. This announcement was made this week by Secretary of the Air Force Thomas K. Finletter, immediately after his return from Turkey where he observed the operation of the program for military aid to Turkey by the United States.

Experimental models of the B-52 bomber, previously ordered, have not yet been delivered, but the Air Force took the unusual procedure of going into production of the new plane, because of the excellent performance of the B-47 medium bomber, which is a smaller prototype of the big new heavy bomber.

Mr. Finletter also said that the Air Force had ordered two experimental models of a new all-jet B-36 heavy bomber, with swept-back wings. This will be in some respects a competitive plane to the B-52, but it is possible, depending on performance, that both types of heavy bombers may be adopted as standard equipment for heavy bombardment groups.

The Secretary also stated that it had been virtually decided to adopt the British Canberra jet bomber and to go into quantity production on this fast plane at the Glenn L. Martin plant. Mr. Finletter said that Air Force experts regard this plane as the best light bomber now available.

While in Europe Mr. Finletter spent most of his time in Turkey. He praised highly the morale and efficiency of the Turkish army and air force. He said the Turkish people were determined to defend their country, and were extremely friendly toward the United States. He said that the Turkish air force will be equipped this year with jet planes, provided by the United States.

"The Army and Navy Journal is established in the interests of no party; it will be controlled by no clique. Its independence will be absolute. Avoiding all personal and political bias, its influence will be directed solely to the inculcation of sound military ideas, and to the elevation of the public service in all its departments."—From Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Army and Navy Journal, published August 29, 1863.

SATURDAY, 3 MARCH 1951

"In this torn world, the backbone of freedom takes its strength from the power we have to defend it."—GENERAL OF THE ARMY OMAR N. BRADLEY, USA, CHAIRMAN, JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Establishment and operation of a Universal Training and Service program and the building up of readiness for industrial production for war as bases for an "enduring system of National Defense."
2. Continued scientific research and development, particularly in all new and unconventional devices and methods of warfare.
3. Revision of Career Compensation Act to correct injustices demonstrated by experience, including adequate compensation of junior officers with long service in enlisted grades. Permanent legislation for special pay for personnel actually engaged in combat with the enemy. More realistic allowances, including those for travel and per diem. Improved retirement pay for disabled and wounded personnel.
4. Early construction of adequate government quarters for Service personnel at all permanent stations, supplemented by government-sponsored private construction to meet expansion needs.
5. Continuance and extension of medical and dental care for Service families; provision for education at government expense of children of Service personnel at stations where suitable free public schools are not available; and survivor benefits for dependents.
6. Restoration of military exemptions from Federal Income Tax broadened to exclude all retired pay from taxation. Recall to active duty of militarily useful retired officers, together with liberalization of ban on dual compensation so that the government may utilize fully the services of all capable retired personnel.
7. A satisfactory and orderly promotion system for warrant officers to assure all qualified appointees of reaching top grade prior to retirement.
8. Adjustment of promotion procedures to meet current emergency needs and to assure retention on active duty of all qualified officers.

Housing for Service Personnel. The need for stepping up the construction of adequate housing for service personnel and their families grows more acute as the forces expand. This fact has constantly been impressed upon Congress by representatives of the Department of Defense, but a new appeal from an independent source has been made which should serve to emphasize further to the committee members the seriousness of the situation. Mr. Leo Goodman, secretary of the National Housing Committee of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, appeared before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee to present the results of studies his CIO group had made and to urge improvements in the government-sponsored housing program. While he was appearing in behalf of labor, and primarily in support of a resolution adopted by the United Labor Policy Committee, Congress and the country should have been deeply impressed by the fact that both the resolution and Mr. Goodman urged the necessity for giving first priority to military housing and second priority to new civilian housing. "This year," Mr. Goodman said, "we have come to the conclusion that the serious weakening of our Armed Forces as a result of the failure to meet housing needs of the Military Services justifies a top priority for this group. * * * Probably the greatest area of failure in the housing field since the termination of hostilities in World War II lies in this area of military housing." The CIO representative then went on to quote authorities in the various Armed Forces citing the detrimental effect the lack of housing is having on the military program. Another independent agency, the President's Committee on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces, has emphasized repeatedly the evil effects of inadequate housing. Both the number and quality of service housing must be raised considerably to meet even the minimum of foreseeable permanent forces in the future.

Navy Ship Construction. President Truman will give prompt approval to the legislation which has now cleared Congress to authorize a program of ship construction and conversion for the Navy. The bill authorizes the building of 140 major new vessels totalling approximately 500,000 tons and the conversion of another 292 ships into types more modern and more useful in the exercise of our sea power. The program emphasizes particularly the improvement of aircraft carriers and the development of vessels to meet the problems of anti-submarine warfare and mine sweeping. Public interest has centered largely in the authorization of a new type carrier, which is primarily a direct development of the USS Midway type and the lessons gleaned from the Navy's extensive experience with carriers in World War II. The program is of vast importance to the maintenance of our effective sea power. While the Navy came out of the last war with the greatest fleet of vessels in history, it must be recalled that there has been virtually no construction since, while there have been enormous strides made in both sea and air weapons in this atomic age. While the usefulness of the equipment left over from World War II can not be discounted, it is evident that there must be considerable new construction and modernization of old to keep abreast of the times. The speed with which Congress approved the program and the fact that the Senate accepted the House bill without change, shows the importance the legislature gives to it. However, no authorization is of any value until funds have been appropriated to carry it out. This we hope the Congress will do promptly.

Loss of General Moore. The death of Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore, USA, following a helicopter accident in Korea will be keenly felt throughout the service. Since his graduation from the U. S. Military Academy in 1917 he has been a life devoted to the interests of his country. He served through two World Wars, having been in both the Pacific and Europe in World War II. Following the last war he earned particular distinction by his diplomatic, but firm, handling of the touchy situation in Trieste where he was in command of the U. S. Forces and in direct contact with the truculent communist forces of Yugoslavia. His fine ideals and high standards will be carried on for many years by the graduates of the U. S. Military Academy where he served the past two years as superintendent. His death marks the loss of the third United States general officer in Korea, General Walton H. Walker also having been accidentally killed and Maj. Gen. William F. Dean for whom there is still a ray of hope that he may be a prisoner of the Chinese reds.

Letters to the Editor

Letters intended for publication should be accompanied by the name and address of the writer as evidence of good faith. If the writer desires to omit his name when the letter is published, he should so state. THE JOURNAL may find it necessary to use only extracts from longer letters.

Penalty for Serving

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The following extract from "FHS-6 Standard Conditions for Contracts," can only be interpreted as forbidding the exercise of talents and ability of retired officers, for furthering the defense effort: "The attention of all bidders is invited to the fact that there are restrictive statutory provisions governing the conduct of retired officers of the Armed Services in their dealings with the United States. Included among such statutes are sections 216 and 281 of Title 18 of the United States code; section 412 of Public Law 329—81st Congress; and the restrictions on the pay of retired officers usually contained in the annual military appropriations acts (for example Public Law 434, 81st Congress). Accordingly, if you or any of your employees or agents are retired officers of the Armed Services, the effect of any and all such restrictive statutes should be considered and resolved before a bid is submitted."

This clause forbids retired officers to indulge in any of the following activities:

1. To be employed by an organization or person that is receiving money from the U. S. Government for national defense contracts, including the following occupations: a. aircraft industries, b. oil industries, c. automobile industries, d. armament plants, and e. food production and sales.

2. Retired pay is jeopardized through acceptance of employment under, a. Atomic Energy Commission, b. Central Intelligence Agency, c. Civilian Defense, d. Diplomatic Service, and e. Civil Service of any nature.
3. It could actually prohibit farming, shipping, transportation and any other occupation that might be subsidized directly or indirectly by the U. S. Government.

It is therefore recommended that steps be taken to eliminate this unjust and unfair situation. Reserve and National Guard officers who are receiving retired benefits are not affected by such restrictive legislation.

Now of all times, we need every ounce of brains and ability to further production, distribution and industrial accomplishment both in government and industry, if we are to succeed in the huge undertaking of the national defense program. Retired officers are ready, willing and able to offer their services in this patriotic effort, if their hands are untied.

Col., USA-Retired

AF Promotions

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It is only very infrequently that I feel that criticism of policy of one of the Armed Services is justified, but the recent publication of the Air Force list of promotions to Lieutenant Colonel, should invite immediate criticism from members of eligible Air Force officers.

Since publication of this list I have heard of four cases, where officers who were passed over for promotion to permanent Major were promoted to temporary Lieutenant Colonel. It is somewhat incomprehensible to me how an officer who has been considered unqualified for permanent promotion to the grade of Major can still be considered more qualified to serve as a temporary Lieutenant Colonel than officers who made the permanent Major list and were also eligible for the recent temporary promotion.

Although it will hardly be forthcoming, I feel that the Air Force promotion board owes a full explanation to those officers who were dealt the above mentioned blow to their dignity, not to mention the blow to their responsibilities and pocketbook.

In The Journal

One Year Ago

Lt. Gen. Henry S. Aurand, Commanding General, U. S. Army, Pacific, has announced the appointment of the staff and faculty to conduct Phase II of the "Little Leavenworth" Special Associate Course, Command and General Staff College, which will be held at Maluhia, Ft. De Russy, from 12 to 25 March.

10 Years Ago

Brig. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, USA, has been selected to be Chief of Infantry with rank of major general. Capt. H. H. J. Benson, USN, will command the battleship USS Washington when she is completed. Maj. Gen. Clayton B. Vogel, USMC, and Maj. Gen. Holland M. Smith, USMC, have been appointed commanders of Marine Corps Divisions.

25 Years Ago

Placing of an order for one hundred and fifty 800-horsepower airplane engines at a total cost of $2,364,000 was announced by the Secretary of the Navy. Commenting on the approval of this order, the Secretary said that it showed not only that the Navy is going ahead with aviation but that it "cost something."

50 Years Ago

A proposition is under way to make an endeavor to lighten to some extent the equipment of an infantry soldier in heavy marching order. When it is taken into consideration that an infantry soldier under heavy marching orders has to carry 73 pounds 15½ ounces, exclusive of the water in his canteen which weighs approximately three pounds, it will be seen that this question is worthy of action.

85 Years Ago

The silly clamor which, at the outbreak of the war, rose up against the school at West Point, has long since subsided. Those were the days of flurry and ignorance, in which, vainly feeling about for some 90-day method of ending a war of immeasurable magnitude, the people gave vent to every idle prejudice, hatched a new delusion every day. When the war ends, we find the lieutenant general and each one of the five major generals a graduate of West Point. So far as professional skill is concerned, the Confederate military records show a profusion hardly less remarkable of West Point names in high commands. Our position is not shaken by the brilliant examples of successful generalship exhibited by soldiers drawn from civil life.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—For the first time since the end of hostilities of World War II the Russian government this week announced the strength of its armed forces. In a note to Great Britain the Soviet Union declared that the overall total of its army, navy and air force was two and one-half million. It contended that this was less than half of the five million it asserted that the United States, Great Britain and France have under arms at the present time.

The Soviet announcement was contained in a note to Great Britain in reply to a British communication, charging that the present world tension was largely due to the failure of Russia to demobilize its huge army at the close of the war. This charge the Russian foreign office indignantly denied, claiming that its present military force is almost exactly the same size it was in 1939, prior to World War II, whereas that of the western powers is several times greater than in pre-war times.

It is to be noted that the Russian missive fails to include the military strength of the Soviet bloc of puppet states, while combining, for purposes of comparison, the forces of the three principal western allies. The most recent official American estimate places the military strength of the Soviet Union at four million, instead of two and one-half million, and that of its satellites at one million. This would make an aggregate of five million in the European Communist forces. The American estimate of the current military strength of the twelve Atlantic Pact countries is four and one-half million. If the Chinese Red army of three or four million were included the military strength of the Communist countries would approach nine million, or double that of the western allies.

► THE SOVIET NOTE angrily denounced the alleged misrepresentations of the British, but it closed with a conciliatory tone, agreeing to meet with England in an effort to reach an amicable understanding. Conceivably such a meeting could take place concurrently with the proposed Big Four conference of Foreign Ministers, requested by Russia.

In another note the Soviet government accepted the proposal of the western powers that a preliminary meeting of deputy foreign ministers be held in Paris next week to determine the agenda for the proposed Big Four foreign ministers' conference at a later date. There is some skepticism as to whether or not an agreement can be reached with Russia as to the matters to be discussed, since Russia wants primary emphasis placed on the prohibition of German rearmament, while the western democracies wish to broaden the discussion to include all major points of difference.

The Communist government of Czechoslovakia this week announced the arrest of Vlado Clementis, former Red leader and foreign minister, and four other prominent Communists, on charges of conspiring to overthrow the government and to assassinate Clement Gottwald, president of the country. As is usual in the case of such arrests in Communist countries it is officially reported that the culprits have confessed. The Czech government also has announced that 170,000 have been purged from the ranks of the Communist party. This is more than eight per cent of the party's membership and indicates a much wider revolt against Red rule than had been supposed. This brings to half a million the total number dropped by the party in satellite countries in the recent past. The obvious charge was that these recreant members were loyal to their own countries, instead of the Kremlin.

In Italy some 700 prominent Communists have voluntarily left the party in the past few weeks rather than put their loyalty to Russia ahead of that to their own country. This probably means the defection of at least several thousand rank and file members of the party in Italy.

The open hearings of Senate Committees on the proposal to send additional military forces to Europe, as a contribution to collective defense of Atlantic Pact countries, were concluded this week. The Senate Committees on Foreign Relations and Armed Services, which have been conducting the hearings, will hold several executive sessions before reporting their findings.

At this week's hearings several prominent political figures took opposing sides on the wisdom and propriety of sending more troops to Europe. Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, President Harold E. Stassen of the University of Pennsylvania, former Senator John Sherman Cooper, Republican adviser to the State Department, and General Lucius D. Clay, USA, Ret., strongly favored bolstering European defenses, while former President Herbert Hoover, Senator Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio), and Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R-Neb.) vigorously opposed this action, except with the specific approval of the Congress.

► GOVERNOR DEWEY declared that withdrawal or limitation of American military support to Western Europe would be tantamount to an invitation to Russia to move into that area. He urged that the Wherry resolution, limiting the assignment of American ground forces to Europe be overwhelmingly defeated. Mr. Stassen and Mr. Cooper each took a similar position.

On the other hand, Senator Taft said that the present plan of the administration to fix the present American ground force contribution at six divisions might be changed later to 18 divisions, or even more, at a cost that would threaten the economic stability of the country. Senator Wherry accused Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall, General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, and General J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, of fostering antiquated and exploded theories of warfare by clinging to the notion of supremacy of ground forces, and failing to recognize the enormous potentialities of air power. He said it was up to Congress to remove the noose from the neck of the Air Force. He strongly opposed the dispatch of American ground troops to Europe without Congressional approval.

► MR. HOOVER said that Europe today cannot be defended with less than 100 divisions and that there was the "utmost jeopardy" in involving the United States in a land war there. He feared that the dispatch of four additional American divisions to Europe would almost surely lead to a disastrous land war. He said the Russian armies could sweep over Europe in an "avalanche" and reach the English channel in twenty days. The salvation of Europe, he said, was to build up the air and sea power of the United States and Great Britain so as to overwhelm Russia in case of attack.

General Clay made a strong plea for further military assistance for the people of the western democracies of Europe. He opposed any suggestion of a mathematical ratio of assistance to Europe, or any fixed limitation of the amount of aid to be extended. He took issue with those who contended that land armies could not defend Europe against Russia, and said that he felt that with our aid a strong and effective defense force could be maintained.

In statements made elsewhere than at the Senatorial hearings Governor Earl Warren of California, Senator James H. Duff (R-Pa.) and Senator Wayne Morse (R-Ore.) strongly opposed the position taken by Mr. Hoover and others favoring a limitation on the sending of American troops to Europe, and urged that the views of the military leaders advocating such assistance be approved.

British nerves, somewhat ruffled by the announcement that Admiral Wm. M. Fechteler, USN, would command the overall Atlantic Pact fleet, were partially soothed this week by the explanation that a Briton would be named deputy commander, and that a British admiral would command the combined fleet in the eastern Atlantic and in British home waters.

Unique Ordnance Battalion—In view of the Army's increased use of light aircraft and helicopters in Korea and in projected units, the story of how a unique ordnance unit is performing in combat is of significant interest. The first ordnance battalion in Army history to be organized for the specific purpose of maintaining light aircraft, the 79th Ordnance Battalion, commanded by Maj. George L. Lovett, is responsible for the repair and maintenance of Army aircraft, under the overall supervision of Col. Olaf P. Winningstad, Eighth Army Ordnance Officer.

Among the more important units of the 79th is the 47th Ordnance Light Aircraft Maintenance Company, whose officers are Capt. William H. Gardner and Capt. Alfred Baker, with the mission of recovering Army planes shot down on the battlefield. During a three-month period, this company retrieved 16 planes as frequently the salvage crews functioned in the face of enemy small arms fire. In addition to the 47th, another pioneer ordnance unit is the 71st Light Aviation Depot Company.

The experience gained by the 79th Ordnance Battalion is being written into a text book—presently revised at frequent intervals—which will serve as a basis for the training of future Light Aviation Maintenance Battalions.

AF Trainees At Army Post—A group of Air Force recruits are undergoing basic training at the Army's Camp Carson, Colo.—an example of unification in the Rockies. Because 59 recruits assigned to the Air Defense Command could not be trained properly at Ent AFB, Colo., arrangements were made for them to go through the training cycle with the 412th Engineer Construction Battalion at Camp Carson.

Atom Aircraft—With the permission of the Air Force a spokesman for the General Electric Company has revealed that contractual negotiations are underway for development of "a nuclear power plant for aircraft."

The announcement followed by a day the Atomic Energy Commission's report that the first phase in the program to develop an atomic airplane has been completed. This phase involved mainly the mathematical computations and theory formulations in advance of actual work on blueprints.

U. S. Navy To Test British Device—Ejection seats which throw the pilot clear of his aircraft have been in production for aircraft of the Royal Air Force and the Royal Navy for some time, but a new automatic type of seat is now under development. It has been found that in high-speed, high-altitude fighters, the pilot might lose consciousness through lack of oxygen when he was thrown clear of the aircraft. In any case he must delay opening his parachute until he has fallen to a height where the air is not so thin.

The new Martin-Baker ejection seat opens the airman's parachute at the correct height automatically. Experiments with the seat have already been carried out in England and its production for high-speed Service aircraft is under consideration. Tests on the seat are to be carried out in America by the U. S. Navy.

To work the new seat, the pilot of a fighter merely jettisons the canopy of his cockpit and pulls a face-screen over his face. He is then automatically "fired" into the air at a speed of about 60 ft. a second. When he has been thrown well clear of the aircraft, a small "drogue" parachute opens up. A timing device takes control and after four seconds automatically opens the main parachute, releases the safety harness and lets the seat fall away. If the seat is above 10,000 ft. the drogue operates, but the opening of the parachute is delayed automatically by a barostat device until the pilot reaches that height—above 10,000 ft. there is too little oxygen to breathe.

If the pilot's cockpit canopy jams, he can jump out of the aircraft through an escape hatch and operate the parachute manually. It can also be manually operated at any time after an ejected escape. By merely moving a hand lever the airman can pull his ripcord in the normal way.

Division of Manpower—In the wake of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee's report last week which criticized the Air Force for attempts to "skim the cream" from the available manpower resources, there were two significant developments this week:

1. On Capitol Hill, Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) introduced legislation which would provide for enlistments in the National Military Establishment, rather than in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps or Coast Guard.

2. During testimony before the House Armed Services Committee, General J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, declared that "we in the Army must have equal claim with the other Services on the best of the Nation's manhood."

In introducing his legislation to permit a man to join "the Armed Services as a whole subject to allocation where the needs of the Nation are greatest," Senator Lodge said his bill "frankly recognizes one of the most important facts about war—which is that the job which needs to be done is often not the job which is most attractive or popular. If everyone were allowed to enlist in the branch of his choice," he continued, "it is undoubtedly true that we would have very little, if any, infantry. Yet so far, it has been found impossible to win wars without infantry. It is a great pity," he said, "that this illustrious branch should not have the recognition in all senses of the word which it deserves."

Manpower, said Senator Lodge, "is our greatest military asset. It is something which is definitely limited in number. We cannot produce a crop of young men the way we produce a crop of wheat or the way we can step up our industrial production. They must therefore go where they are most needed."

During recent months, it has been significant that although he has emphasized the need for skilled manpower in the Army, General Collins has avoided any references to competition among the Services for available young men. In his Congressional testimony this week, his remarks on this subject were quite mild, but indicated plainly that the Army is greatly concerned over this matter. General Collins held that modernization of Army equipment continues the No. 1 problem, but he added "the finest equipment in the world is literally worthless without technicians trained as soldiers—hardened, seasoned and highly skilled in its maintenance and operation." Continuing General Collins declared: "We cannot expect too much of machines alone. Once the soldier is trained to his weapon, he becomes part of one of the highly-developed combat teams of a modern Army division. Whether one of these divisions fights well or poorly depends on the training and leadership of its smaller component combat teams of infantry, artillery and armor."

"These battle teams are the most difficult, the most complicated of all teams to create. They must be capable of operating on unfamiliar ground, in darkness as well as daylight, amid incredible confusion, danger, hardship, and discouragement. The leadership of such teams is of the utmost importance; it requires judgment, intelligence, courage, and resourcefulness. The sergeant leading his squad, the lieutenant leading his platoon, and the captain leading his company into combat carry one of the heaviest and most critical responsibilities of the Armed Services. Their abilities, their strengths, their weaknesses directly affect the lives of the men in their care. That is why we in the Army must have equal claim with the other Services on the best of the Nation's manhood."

MATS Plane Utilization—Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, USAF, Commanding General of the Military Air Transport Service, last week told the annual reunion of former Air Transport Command officers in New York City that the utilization of MATS aircraft per day has gone from an average of 2.5 hours at the outbreak of the Korean war to a present average of six hours. He said, however, that soon this will be increased to 10 hours daily per plane.

War Claims Payments—By mid-February the War Claims Commission had paid a total of more than 44,000 Prisoner of War and civilian internee claims amounting to $25,769,919. The deadline for making application was 1 March. The Commission stated that this month claimants with the numbers in the 46,000-50,000 series will be paid. Latest figures showed that a total of 123,795 claims had been received, but officials indicated, just prior to the 1 March deadline, that as many as 20,000 eligible persons had not made the necessary claims.

Third Star for ROK General—The Army of the Republic of Korea now has a three-star officer—its first in history. He is Lt. Gen. Chun Il Kwon, who during 1950 toured military installations in the United States. General Kwon commands all South Korean forces.

General Officer Nominations—It is to be expected that a list of new Army general officer nominations will be sent to the Senate shortly—probably this month. For analysis shows that a number of officers are serving in ranks below that normally required for such billets. For example, one of the division commanders in Korea is a brigadier general and other brigadier generals are commanding division units in the United States. It is known that the Army's expansion has now reached a point where a number of general officer promotions are required.

Captain's Goose Was Cooked—Capt. Renwick Riley of the X Corps Provost Marshal Section recently had his goose cooked. The captain, a crack shot, during a recent one day's tour of MP check points in the X Corps area in Korea, shot three pheasants and a fox and the next day bagged a pheasant, a duck and a goose. Returning to the headquarters area, Captain Riley's men quickly cooked his goose. Then they helped him eat it.

Ships of the Fleet—The 20,000th landing aboard the carrier USS Bataan, commanded by Capt. Edgar T. Neale, USN, was made recently by 1st Lt. Thomas L. Mulvihill, USMC, attached to Marine Fighter Squadron 212.

► FOUR DESTROYERS passed through Pearl Harbor recently en route to the United States. The group, Escort Destroyer Division 61 under command of Capt. William L. Messmer, USN, includes the destroyers USS Berry, McCaffery, Norris and Keppler. The 2,400-ton destroyers were converted for anti-submarine warfare operations in 1949. Three of them, units of the Atlantic Fleet, were on duty in the Mediterranean when they received orders to proceed to Korea to lend support to United Nations naval forces. The group proceeded through the locks at Panama en route for an Atlantic port for a well deserved leave and recreation period before reporting back to the Atlantic Fleet. Commanding officers of the ships are Comdr. Victor H. Wildt, USN, McCaffery; Comdr. Thomas D. Cunningham, USN, Berry; Comdr. James P. McCallum, USN, Norris, and Comdr. Ellis H. McDowell, USN, Keppler.

The Navy tug Takelma this week rescued 12 seamen adrift in a lifeboat for four days after their Norwegian freighter had sunk southwest of Iwo Jima. The survivors were landed at Guam.

► THE USS LEYTE has arrived in Norfolk from service in Korea for extensive repairs.

The men on the ships of the Commander Service Force, Pacific Fleet, recently took time out from supplying logistics support to our combatant ships and forward bases to take up a collection for the March of Dimes Campaign. Incomplete returns show that the Service Force ships have contributed more than $9,582. This is almost double the amount collected last year. The USS Mataco, a small fleet tug, has an average of over $4 per man on board, with a total of $360. The personnel of the flag allowance and Staff of Commander Service Squadron Three, and Mobile Ordnance Unit One, stationed aboard the USS Hector have collected over $2,862. Another fleet tug, the USS Lipan, has collected over $281.

Ending a 14½-month tour of duty in the West Pacific, the Navy fleet tug, USS Arikara, arrived in Pearl Harbor on 22 Feb. Lt. Comdr. K. Mundy is commanding officer.

Army Field Forces—General Mark W. Clark, Chief of Army Field Forces returned to Fort Monroe, Va., on 23 Feb. from an observation trip to Korea and Japan. General Clark was accompanied by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Inspector of Infantry; Maj. Gen. George D. Shea, Inspector of Artillery; Maj. Gen. Joseph P. Sullivan, Quartermaster; Brig. Gen. Riley F. Ennis, Inspector of Armor; Lt. Col. H. C. Dellert of the Infantry Inspector Section; and Maj. Robert B. Jaccard, Infantry. General Clark conferred with General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, Commanding General of the Far East Command and the United Nations Command, and Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Commanding General of the 8th Army.

Maj. Gen. William B. Bradford, recently promoted to two-star rank, has been named Assistant Chief of Staff, G3, replacing Maj. Gen. Milton B. Halsey who was transferred from Fort Monroe to become Deputy Commanding General of the Sixth Army.

Maj. Gen. John H. Church who recently returned from Korea where he commanded the 24th Division, visited Fort Monroe on 26 February to confer with the Army Field Forces staff regarding training. He has been assigned as Commandant of The Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia. Preceding his tour of duty in the Pacific, General Church was Deputy Chief of OCAFF. Accompanying General Church to Fort Monroe was Brig. Gen. George Honnen, who is the Assistant Commandant of The Infantry School at Fort Benning.

The following officers have recently been assigned to OCAFF: Col. Richmond T. Battey II, has been assigned to the G2 Section; Lt. Col. Roland H. Mapes, to Plans & Training Division of the Signal Section; Lt. Col. Melvin H. Jones to G4; Maj. S. V. Radley-Walters, DSO, MC, as Canadian Liaison Officer; Lt. Col. Sherroll L. Bettis, Research and Development Section; Lt. Col. Leroy E. Wade, Provost Marshal's office; Lt. Col. Alexander F. Lipton, G3, Organization and Equipment Division; Col. Walter T. O'Reilly, Liaison Officer in Washington, D. C.; Lt. Col. Willard R. Seymour, QM Section; Maj. Jules M. Duparc, Schools Division, G3.

Colorful Band Attire—Their present blue uniform due for replacement, the 125 members of the U. S. Army Band, stationed at Ft. Myer, Va., are to be issued a yellow-gold coat, new blue and gold caps and blue trousers similar to those presently worn.

The Army said the new jackets are considered more suitable for wear at state occasions. The yellow-gold jackets actually constitute a saving of wool and funds. They were manufactured by the Quartermaster Depot at Philadelphia, from facing material purchased more than 10 years ago for cavalry uniforms. The new trousers were made from white facing cloth that also was on hand. The cloth, which was dyed blue, could not be dyed an olive drab shade to meet other Army requirements.

A new white summer uniform to replace the old tropical worsted outfit also is under consideration, the Army said, to give the band an appearance of distinction and provide added comfort in summer.

"Time" Salutes General Ridgway—The accomplishments of Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, USA, as Commanding General of the Eighth Army are told in the feature article in the 5 March issue of "Time." General Ridgway's photograph is on the cover of the magazine.

Meantime, reports persist that the President soon will send to the Senate the nomination of General Ridgway for four-star rank. Speedy Congressional approval of this promotion is held certain.

AF General For NATO Post?—There was speculation this week that Lt. Gen. Curtis LeMay, USAF, Commanding General, Strategic Air Command, Offutt AFB, Nebr., would be named to command the strategic bombardment command of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The report was that General LeMay's headquarters would be in the United States, probably at Offutt AFB.

Battlefield Commissions—Army officials at the Pentagon said this week that there have been a total of 353 battlefield commissions reported to the Department from Korea. It was indicated, however, that additional commissions for outstanding combat service probably have been issued, but notification has not yet reached Washington.

Letter From Walter Reed—An 1885 letter, written by Walter Reed, famous Army surgeon of the 19th century, has been given to the Medical Field Service School Museum at Brooke Army Medical Center, Tex., by a former student, Lt. Col. Reuben E. Moen, reserve officer at Chicago. The letter was written by Walter Reed when he was post surgeon at Fort Robinson, Nebr., some years before his research which helped stamp out yellow fever. The subject of the letter makes it timely. Addressed to the post adjutant at Fort Robinson, it requests authority be granted for admission into the post hospital of "Citizen Thomas Roach for treatment of frostbite of both feet."

Army Medical Corps—Lt. Col. Charles V. Snurkowski, MC, USA, who, for the past three years, has been medical editor of the "History of the Army Medical Department in World War II," has been relieved from that duty and ordered to report to the Far East Command.

Army Dental Corps—The Oral Surgery Section of the Dental Service of Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., has been approved for Residency Training in Prosthodontics by the Committee on Internships and Residencies of the Council on Dental Education, American Dental Association. This is the first time an Army hospital has been approved for this residency.

New MARS (Army) Chief—Capt. Lester A. Peterson, Signal Corps, has been designated Chief, Military Amateur Radio System (Army). He replaces Maj. Edward L. Nielsen.

Army General's Daughter in AF—Miss Gloria Ann Haven of Merrick, L. I., this week was sworn into the Air Force. She is the daughter of Lt. Gen. Donald S. Haven, USA-Ret.

Signal Corps Anniversary—The Army Signal Corps is 88 years old today, having been created by Congress on 3 March 1863. Present Chief Signal Officer is Maj. Gen. S. B. Akin.

Busy Driver Earns a Rest—The reassignment of Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay from command of the 1st Cavalry Division in Korea to be Deputy Commander of the Fourth Army at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., likely will result in a well-earned rest from driving for Sgt. James M. Fielding, Jr., the son of an Army major. During seven months of combat, Sergeant Fielding drove General Gay more than 13,000 miles over Korean roads and trails. Along the route, the sergeant won the Bronze Star Medal for helping to save the general's life when the command jeep was attacked by a group of enemy soldiers.

Nat. Guard

training.

Meantime, speculation persists that possibly two other National Guard divisions may be sent to Europe as part of the four additional divisions which Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall has stated will be placed under General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower's command. A total of six National Guard divisions and three Regimental Combat Teams are now on active duty.

During Congressional testimony this week, General Collins, Army Chief of Staff, said he was considering asking the joint Chiefs of Staff to endorse the calling of two additional National Guard divisions by the end of the year.

During his appearance before the House Armed Services Committee on the Universal Military Service and Training legislation, General Collins heard Representative L. Mendel Rivers (D-SC) charge that "the National Guard is being picked to pieces like a carcass."

To this the Army Chief of Staff replied "the Guard is in better shape today than at any time in our peacetime history. We intend to keep it that way."

However, it is known that many National Guard officials are not entirely pleased with the present policies regarding the utilization of the National Guard, as was plainly indicated during the Adjutants General Association meetings in Washington.

What is at the root of the problem is the fact that for the first time the National Guard is being called to active duty in piecemeal fashion. Heretofore, the National Guard has been brought into active service all at once and all units were in the same status. Then there is the problem also of what to do with men of draft age who are in the Guard. And Guard officials are concerned also about how the divisions on active duty are being utilized and what will be their future.

The problems relating to the National Guard in the current period of semi-mobilization were enunciated this week by Maj. Gen. William H. Harrison, Jr., of Massachusetts, president of the Adjutants General Association, and by Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh of Minnesota, president of the National Guard Association. Pertinent excerpts from their addresses are published herewith.

Emphasizing the unique defense program as regards the National Guard, General Harrison said that "never before in our history have we witnessed an actual war superimposed on theoretical conditions of peace . . . Diplomacy," said General Harrison, "may prevent or delay a war, but no amount of subterfuge or evasion can provide the armies that must fight one—if fight we must."

Then, turning to specific issues of concern to the National Guard, General Harrison said:

"Our Guard has had its friends as well as its foes. It has had its avowed enemies as well as those who, without malice, have unconsciously promoted policies which tended to devitalize the Guard and to render it useless and ineffective. Today the great danger to which the Guard is exposed is from those policies which in the long run must have a damaging effect on the Guard."

"In the first place, I desire to call attention to the danger to the Guard of certain recruiting policies which, unless corrected, must tend to deplete our ranks and reduce our organization to a nominal status. The intensive recruiting drives by the various branches of the armed services must inevitably tend to draw from our ranks the most ardent and enthusiastic soldiers,—the men, if I may be permitted the terms, who supply that esprit and morale that are the indispensable ingredients of any worthwhile military organization. Men who chafe under the restraints of inaction, and who after having been trained see their friends called into service while they remain at home, will readily succumb to the alluring appeals of the other branches. The consequence is immeasurable damage to the Guard. We have lost many fine soldiers because our muster rolls have not been protected from invasion by the recruiting agencies of other branches of the service."

"We should insist on the structural integrity of our service. We should demand that no member of the National Guard be enlisted in any other service unless he has been released by the Adjutant General of the State in which he serves."

"Equally disconcerting is the outlook for the National Guard during the period of the emergency. The Universal Military Training and Service program depends for effective execution upon the existence of a National Guard which the trainees may join upon the termination of their active service. Unless sufficient personnel is made available to the National Guard, it would be impossible for it to continue as an effective military force, ready to receive for continued training such U M T personnel as have completed their active service. There is a grave danger that the Universal Military Training program may be adversely affected because of this apparent oversight. Universal Military Training ceases to have meaning unless a working National Guard functions alongside of it. The dangers inherent in the proposed legislation must be recognized and the condition corrected."

"A second serious danger to our Guard derives from a tendency in high places to cannibalize the Guard in the interest of meeting the demands of the present crisis. Equipment is essential to an active National Guard. Whenever equipment is withdrawn from us, its immediate consequence is to immobilize us and to postpone the day when our organizations can be called into active service. It is important that we use all our influence and power to retain that which renders us ready to meet our sacred responsibility. I urge upon all of you, courage and determination in resisting to the utmost any attempt to imperil our training efficiency by the release of equipment."

"Another problem which has long range implications derives from the inadequacy of our armory facilities. If the National Guard is to play an important role in the future defense policy of our country, then it must be adequately housed and provided with ample facilities. Now is the time to inaugurate an armory construction program. To wait until the end of the emergency is to postpone this most important requirement to a time when indifference and frugality dominate the scene. It has happened before—much to the cost of our National Defense. Let it not happen again."

"Another problem confronting many of us at this time is the difficulty in obtaining medical officers. This condition has been aggravated by a recent decision of the Department of the Army which denies Federal recognition to an officer of the Army Medical Service who is classified in Priority I under Selective Service law."

Gen. Walsh's Address

Stressing the problem of the partial mobilization of the National Guard, General Walsh said:

"It might be well for our people, and others too, for that matter, to bear in mind that all of the laws enacted by the Congress with reference to the military, and all military policies promulgated heretofore, have been based on the proposition of a total mobilization inaugurated as the result of the Congress declaring a state of war or a state of national emergency. To date the Congress has done neither but, nevertheless, we have been, and still are, confronted with a partial mobilization as a result of which those who would normally have gone last, such as the inactive reserve, have gone first, while those who should have normally gone first, such as the Army National Guard and the Class "A" units of the Organized Reserve Corps, will, to a considerable extent, go last. In essence the Congressional Statement of Policy contained in the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940 and restated in the Selective Service Act of 1948 has been nullified. This nullification was made possible by the addition of Section 21 to the Selective Service and Extension Act of 1960. In view of the foregoing, it is not to be wondered at that there has been a world of confusion and notably in the minds of National Guard and Reserve personnel."

"Certain it is, at the moment, not even a guess can be hazarded as to whether additional units of the Army National Guard will be ordered into the active military service of the United States, and if they be so ordered, when that will take place. To maintain the authorized strength of the Army National Guard units which have not yet been ordered into the active military service of the United States is not going to be an easy matter, even though in the proposed Universal Military Training and Service Bill (S. 1) the Army National Guard retains the pipeline set up in Section 6 (c) (2) of the Selective Service Act of 1948, for irrespective of what is retained, the Army National Guard will have to face the keen competition of the recruitment by the Regular Establishment."

Philadelphia Armory

The Army plans to build a $500,000 Armory in Philadelphia, Col. H. A. Murphy, Chief of the Pennsylvania Military District, has announced.

Philadelphia Army Reservists now train at Schuylkill Arsenal in Philadelphia, which is inadequate to provide space necessary for the many classrooms, drill floors, firing ranges, locker rooms, offices and supply rooms needed for Philadelphia Organized Reserve Corps units and the Philadelphia Organized Reserve Corps School, Colonel Murphy stated.

SERVICE SOCIAL NEWS

THE Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Forrest P. Sherman who are giving a series of dinner parties, entertained the other evening in compliment to Mrs. Sherman's sister, Mrs. Harold M. Martin of Memphis, wife of Vice Admiral Martin, who has been serving as commanding officer of the Naval Technical Training Center and has just been assigned to a new duty, during which Mrs. Martin will visit Admiral and Mrs. Sherman.

Among the dinner guests were the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Lequerica, the Counselor of Spain and Senora de Callejon, Rear Adm. and Mrs. Carl Espe, Col. and Mrs. Joseph Miller and others.

Mrs. Thomas K. Finletter, wife of the Secretary of the Air Force, was a special guest of Mrs. Hoyt S. Vandenberg at the luncheon yesterday of the Air Force Officers' Wives Club at the Army and Navy Country Club. Mrs. Omar N. Bradley and Mrs. W. Stuart Symington shared the honors with Mrs. Finletter.

Others at the head table included Mrs. Charles W. Schott, president of the club, and Mrs. Nathan Twining, Mrs. Muir S. Fairchild, Mrs. Eugene M. Zuckert, Mrs. Harold C. Stuart and Mrs. Theodore Ives Messenger. After luncheon there was a parade of spring fashions. Mrs. James E. Fechet, former president of the club, and its corresponding secretary, Mrs. Manuel J. Asensio, were present.

The Army Chief of Staff and Mrs. J. Lawton Collins entertained at dinner, Wednesday evening, 28 Feb., at their quarters at Ft. Lesley J. McNair. Their guests were the Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Thomas K. Finletter, General and Mrs. Nathan Twining, Lt. Gen. Stephen Chamberlin, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Kenneth Nichols, Miss Mary Happer, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. James L. Collins and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Maxwell Taylor.

Mrs. Luther Miller, wife of the former Chief of Chaplains, now a canon of the Cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul, was MRS. L. P. HODNETTE, Jr. was the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Butler before her marriage on 3 Feb. to Lt. Lovie Pierce Hodnette, USAF, USNA '50, son of Col. and Mrs. L. P. Hodnette, USA-Ret.

MRS. DANIEL F. SLAUGHTER, Jr., the former Miss Kathleen Wilson Rowe, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Buchanan Dugan and Capt. Lionel Lewis Rowe, USN, became the bride of Daniel French Slaughter, Jr., on 27 Jan.

MRS. JAMES L. CHAMBERLAIN, Jr., was the former Miss Elizabeth Ann Wallender, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Elmer F. Wallender, USA-Ret., before her wedding on 17 Feb. at Slingerlands, N. Y., to Mr. Chamberlain.

luncheon hostess Wednesday for Miss Frances Eberle, who is visiting Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Ward H. Maris, who entertained at dinner for Miss Eberle last night.

Lt. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes who has been assigned as head of the weapons evaluation board, is with Mrs. Keyes, temporarily quartered at the Officers' Club at Ft. Myer. Also at the Ft. Myer Club are Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Maxwell D. Taylor. General Taylor is succeeding Maj. Gen. Charles L. Bolte, recently raised to the rank of Lieutenant General, as deputy chief of staff for plans.

The Officers' Club at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., was the scene of a luncheon given Tuesday noon by the Office of Naval Research Wives, honoring Mrs. Thorvald A. Solberg, wife of Rear Admiral Solberg, USN, Chief of Naval Research.

The O. N. R. Wives presented Mrs.

Solberg with a pair of beautiful silver candelabra in appreciation of her accomplishment in organizing the group, and as a tribute expressing their profound gratitude for the constant help she has given all families of the personnel in the Office of Naval Research.

Mrs. J. B. Cochran, wife of Captain Cochran, Executive Officer in the Office of Naval Research, sang three numbers, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. S. Gulbrandson.

At the second birthday luncheon of the Armed Forces Hostess' Association on 6 March at Ft. McNair Officers' Club, a comedy skit, written and directed by one of the organization's founders, Mrs. Clifton F. von Kann, will be presented. Mrs. Malcolm F. Gilchrist and Mrs. Roy G. DeVecchio will assist Mrs. von Kann in showing the humorous difficulties which face the new Service wife in Washington. Mrs. J. Lawton Collins and Mrs. Thomas W. Herron will be among the guests sharing the head table with the president, Mrs. George L. Russell.

The Combined Armed Forces Band Concert to be given the evening of 10 March at Constitution Hall for the benefit of the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmens Club is attracting many Washington notables. Reservations for boxes have been made by the Philippine Ambassador Joaquin M. Elizalde, the Netherlands Ambassador and Mdm. Van Roijen, Representative and Mrs. Thurmond Chatham, the Indonesian Ambassador Dr. Ali Sastroamidjojo, the Chinese Ambassador and Mrs. Koo, Group Captain M. G. Philpott of the British Embassy and other distinguished personages of the diplomatic, Congressional and service circles.

The concert featuring the famous Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force bands in their first joint concert is an appropriate salute to the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmens Club, which for more than half a century has been operated by the wives of officers of the Armed Forces for the enlisted men of all branches of the service.

Tickets for the combined concert are on sale at the Willard Hotel Ticket Agency.

Miss Cher Beishline, daughter of Col. and Mrs. John R. Beishline, celebrated her sixteenth birthday at a dinner party 24 Feb. at the Ft. Lesley J. McNair Officers' Club, with dancing in the Gold Room afterwards. Her guest list included: Gail Jaynes, Nancy Matthews, Mimi Maddocks, Margarita Hoover, Anne Parks, Oddie Twining, Patsy Everest, Karen Carlson, Jimmie Anderson, Tom Taylor, Nathan Twining, Dave Vaughan, Bob Werner, John Herren, John Seville, Tom Collins and Champ Buck.

Mrs. Edward Bodeau has been appointed Personnel Chairman of the Volunteer Information Service desk at the Soldiers', Sailors', Marines' and Airmens' Club by the Volunteer Information Service Armed Services Hospitality Committee. Mrs. Bodeau is the wife of Col. Edward Bodeau, Ord. Corps, and has had many years of experience and training in the personnel and counselling fields, both as an employee of private and government agencies and as a volunteer in civic and service organizations.

Mrs. George D. Pritchett, whose husband, Major Pritchett, is serving in Korea as signal advisor to the Third Republic of Korea Corps, has been selected as the candidate for queen from Jacksonville Beach, Fla., for Jacksonville's 50 Years of Progress Celebration. Mrs. Pritchett, who returned six months ago from Japan, is living now with her two children, Arthur, 8, and Arline, 4, at the home of her parents, Col. and Mrs. A. B. Foreman in Ponte Verda, Fla. The queen for the celebration, to be held in March, will be chosen on the basis of ticket sales to the pageant.

Packing at their home in Alexandria, Va., have been Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Truman H. Landon, departing for Germany for his new duty as deputy chief of the U. S. Air Forces in Europe. Mrs. Landon has been president of the Air Force Officers' Wives Club, an enthusiastic worker who will be greatly missed.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Thomas J. Hayes, III, announce the birth of a daughter, Barbara Jean, at the U. S. Army Hospital, Ft. Belvoir, Va., on Sunday, 25 Feb. Mrs. Hayes, the former Jean Pedley, is the daughter of Col. T. A. Pedley, Jr., USA-Ret., and Mrs. Pedley of Denver, Colo.

Colonel Hayes (USMA '36) is the son of Maj. Gen. Thomas J. Hayes (USMA '12) and Mrs. Hayes, and the nephew of Mrs. Richard Z. Crane, wife of Colonel Crane, all of Falls Church, Va. Colonel Hayes, an officer in the Corps of Engineers of the Army, has been assigned to the Government of the District of Columbia, as Assistant Engineer Commissioner, since March of 1949, when he returned to the U.S. after a three-year tour in London, as Assistant Military Attache to the Court of St. James.

Weddings and Engagements

MISS JANE V. COLESTOCK daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Edward E. Colestock, USN, will be married in the late Spring to Robert Arnold Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Armstrong of Pacific Palisades, Calif.

awarded the degree of bachelor of science in electrical engineering.

The wedding will take place in May.

Rear Adm. Harold Romlyn Holcomb, USN-Ret., and Mrs. Holcomb of San Francisco and Phoenix, announce the engagement of their daughter, Cynthia Gould, to Mr. Elvin Otis Brown, jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Elvin Otis Brown of Sacramento, Calif.

Miss Holcomb was graduated from the Katherine Delmar Burke School in San Francisco, attended the University of Geneva in Switzerland and will receive her degree from Stanford University this June.

Mr. Brown was graduated from Stanford University and will receive his Masters degree from the Stanford Graduate School of Business Administration this Spring, where he is a member of Kappa Alpha. He served with the United States Army in Europe during the war.

Maj. and Mrs. Arnold Lydell Pach announce the engagement of their daughter, Alva Lois, to Capt. Nicholas Henry Nauert, jr., U. S. Air Force Medical Corps, commanding officer of the 60th Medical Group, Wiesbaden Air Base, Germany.

Miss Pach, whose father is Assistant Air Installation Officer at Wiesbaden Military Post, is secretary in the Air Provost Marshal's office at Headquarters, USAFE.

Brig. Gen. Hubert Ward Beyette, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Beyette, of Coronado, Calif., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Dannie, to William Bunker Weston, jr.

Mr. Weston is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Weston, sr., of Santa Clara, Calif.

An exquisite gown of rose point lace which had been her mother's wedding gown, was worn by Miss Carol Dyer Stull Smith when she became the bride of Lt. (jg) Charles Richardson Jeffs, jr., USN, on 17 Feb. The ceremony was performed in the Los Angeles home of her father, Col. Clarke Stull Smith, USA-Ret.

The bride made her entrance via a winding stairway lined with smilax and white blossoms and she made a charming picture in her wedding ensemble which was designed with old fashioned cap sleeves, a square neckline and a long train of soft velvet. A flowing tulle veil hung in graceful folds from a lace bonnet, also an heirloom, and she carried a bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. John F. Tolton, Miss Happy Jeffs, Mrs. E. C. Nelson and Mrs. Willis Frambach were her attendants. The groom chose John F. Tolton as his best man with Lt. (jg) Raymond Viviano, Clarke

Stull Smith, jr. and Robt. L. Hildebrand as ushers.

The bride, a graduate of UCLA, is a provisional member of the Junior League. Her bridegroom, son of Rear Adm. and Mrs. Charles R. Jeffs, of South Gate, Calif., is a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, Class of '47. He is presently stationed in San Diego where they will make their temporary home.

Miss Marilyn Ione Morris, daughter of Mrs. William Colb Morris of San Antonio, Tex., and the late Major Morris, USAF, became the bride of Lt. (jg) Henry Edwin Little, USN, at a twilight service, 24 Feb., at St. Andrew's, the Church of Scotland, Brussels, Belgium. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dixon Little of Freeport, Ill.

Before an altar banked with white lilies and calla lilies, the Reverend V. C. Bennie officiated at the ceremony. Given in marriage by her uncle, Col. Paul M. Martin, who is on duty in Brussels with the Military Assistance Advisory Group, the bride wore an ivory brocade satin gown designed with a full skirt; its bodice sprinkled with seed pearls, had a Peter Pan collar and long sleeves buttoned at the wrists. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a pearl Juliet cap, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white orchids.

Miss Mimi Morris of Washington, D. C., was maid of honor and Capt. Lloyd Zufan, jr., USAF, served as best man. The ushers included Comdr. James L. Jordan, Maj. Robert L. Ramsey, Comdr. Charles A. LaFarge and Lt. Theodore Bielicki.

Among the guests attending the ceremony were the U. S. Ambassador and Mrs. Robert D. Murphy.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the residence of Col. and Mrs. Martin, after which the young couple departed for a wedding trip to Paris and the Riviera. They will make their home in Brussels.

The chapel at the Far East Air Materiel Command in Japan, was the scene of the wedding of Miss Thelma Marie Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Sullivan of Clarksville, Tenn., and Capt. Robert W. Welles, USAF, son of Col. and Mrs. Guy B. Welles of Windsor, Conn., on 9 Feb. Chaplain (Maj.) Dwayne H. Mengel read the single ring ceremony.

The bride was prettily gowned in an ice-blue oriental brocade suit with deep blue accessories and carried a nosegay bouquet of white orchids. She also wore an heirloom gold-band bracelet, a gift from her mother. Her bridesmaid was Maj. Eleanor J. Laing of Fargo, N. D., who wore the new blue uniform of the WAF.

The bride was given in marriage by

Lt. Col. Timothy F. O'Keefe of Levittown, Long Island, N. Y. Captain Welles was attended by Maj. James B. Fishburn of Tulsa, Okla.

Mrs. Welles is a civilian nurse at an Air Force Base in Japan. She attended Austin Peay State College, Clarksville, and later completed nurses training at the St. Thomas School of Nursing in Nashville, Tenn. She was a U. S. Navy nurse during World War II, and after that tour of duty, attended the University of Tennessee at Knoxville.

She and Captain Welles met at Biloxi, Miss., where she was a nurse with the Veterans' Administration and he was a student at an Air Force electronics school.

Captain Welles is Base operations officer at the Far East Air Materiel Command Headquarters, and has been in the Far East for the past two years. He attended Loomis Institute at Windsor, Conn., and later studied at Trinity College in Hartford, where he was a member of Alpha Chi Rho.

He was with the Troop Carrier Command in the China-India-Burma Theater and served with the Training Command in the United States, during World War II.

Wearing a formal bridal gown fashioned of shimmering candlelight satin trimmed with pointed deBron lace and nylon tulle Miss Mary Elizabeth Butler of Mobile, Ala., became the bride 3 Feb. of Lt. Lovic Pierce Hodnette, jr., USAF, USNA '50, son of Col. and Mrs. L. P. Hodnette, USA-Ret. The ceremony was solemnized at 8 o'clock in the evening at the Dauphin Way Methodist Church, Mobile.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Sims Butler of Mobile. Her wedding dress featured an off-shoulder effect with a nylon net yoke outlined in imported lace forming a feathered pattern around the neckline and down the fitted bodice. The full skirt was made redingote style, outlined down the front and on the edges with the same lace pattern, and it fell into a cathedral length train. Her veil of illusion was full length and fell from a bonnet cap accented by a band of satin trimmed in lace and seed pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of hyacinths and lilies of the valley centered with white orchids and showered with white satin streamers.

Miss Kathryn Butler attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Emily Acree, and Miss Ann Adams of Tuscaloosa, and serving as bridesmaids were Mrs. Jack Thomlinson of Birmingham, Mrs. Robert Gottlieb, Mrs. Robert Meador, Mrs. Baskin Butler, and Mrs. Brevard Hand of Mobile.

The bridegroom had as his best man his father, Colonel Hodnette. Groomsman included Baskin Butler, Robert Hodnette and Dr. Albert Haas of Mobile, William Crosby of Birmingham, Chris Kyle of Tuscaloosa, Ens. George Sealey, Ens. Jack Koache, Pensacola, Fla., and Jimmy Sewell of New Orleans.

For traveling the bride changed to a chic beige gabardine suit with which she wore a brown straw hat trimmed with orange and brown lizard. After a wedding trip the couple will go to Phoenix, Ariz., where Lt. Hodnette is stationed.

Col. and Mrs. Clifford A. Best, of the U. S. Army Hospital, Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Joanne Barbara, to Lt. Merton R. Ives, USMC, on 15 Feb. in a candlelight ceremony at the Post Chapel. Col. Frank R. Jenkins, Post Chaplain, read the marriage vows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory slipper satin, fashioned along princess lines, with a yoke and long sleeves of Chantilly lace. Her triple-tiered finger-tipped veil of illusion was attached to a coronet of satin, and she carried a bouquet of white roses, centered with a white orchid.

The maid of honor was Miss Barbara Dalrymple, of Greenville, Illinois. The junior bridesmaid was the bride's younger sister, Miss Adrienne Best.

Capt. Frederick L. Harcourt, MC, of the U. S. Army Hospital at Ft. Leonard Wood, was best man. Serving as ushers were Clifford Best, jr., and James Strauss.

Lieutenant Ives is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ives, of Decatur, Illinois. He is presently serving with the 2nd 90-mm. AAA Battalion, Fleet Marine Forces, Camp Lejeune, N. C.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will make their home at Camp Lejeune.

Miss Jane Louise Souders of Westfield, N. J., and Lt. (jg) Harrison M. Baker, MC, USNR, were married 27 Jan. in the 130th Station Hospital Chapel, Heidelberg, Germany. The ceremony was read by Chaplain (Capt.) G. A. Lollis.

Miss Souders, a social worker in Cincinnati, came to EUCOM for the ceremony. Lieutenant Baker was in residency in the psychiatry department, Cincinnati General Hospital, before his recall from the reserves in November.

1st Lt. Edith E. Beardsley, ANC, 130th Station Hospital, and Capt. Earl E. Bennetts, 7774 Signal Battalion, took marriage vows Saturday, 10 Feb. in the 130th Station Hospital Chapel, Heidelberg, Germany. Chaplain (Col.) E. Imrie, chief chaplain of the 7th Army, performed the rites.

The bride entered the Nurses Corps in March, 1944, and served in the Far East command during World War II. She came to the EC in March, 1949. Captain Bennetts served with the III Corps during the war and is on his third tour of duty in Europe.

1st Lt. Anne Donio, an Army nurse from Hammondsport, N. J., married Capt. Edward J. Prejean, an Army dentist from Gretna, La., recently at a ceremony in Korea.

The chapel where the wedding took place was an Army tent and it stood in the middle of a rice paddy. It had been decorated with a white silken parachute draped behind the altar. The bride did not wear her working slacks, but an Army dress skirt and blouse which friends loaned her. The couple was married by Maj. Urban Konopka, a Catholic chaplain from Pulaski, Wis. As they left the tent chapel they were showered with oatmeal and rice by Army doctors and nurses who attended the ceremony.

The reception was held in a tent that had a red, white and blue silk parachute draped as a ceiling. There was music from a borrowed phonograph and the planked floor of the little tent was soon crowded with dancing couples.

The wedding cake was baked by Sgt. Malcolm Q. Bouldree, an Army cook.

The couple met last June in Ft. Benning, Ga., where they were both stationed. They came overseas in the same unit, but when they got to Yokohama last September, Lieutenant Donio was sent to Ascom City, near Inchon. Captain Prejean was also sent to Ascom City, but got there a day after Lieutenant Donio had been transferred to Pusan. They did get a chance, however, to see each other occasionally. Lieutenant Donio is one of 40 nurses assigned to the 121st Evacuation Hospital.

Capt. Edward E. Colestock, USN, and Mrs. Colestock of Palo Alto, Calif., announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane Victoria, to Robert Arnold Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold G. Armstrong of Pacific Palisades, Calif. Both young people are students at Stanford University, where Mr. Armstrong is a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. The wedding is planned for late spring.

At the First Presbyterian Church, Fayetteville, N. C., recently, Miss Ann Byrd MacArthur became the bride of Lt. David Sutton Meredith, 3d USA, USMA '50. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Neill MacArthur and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Meredith, jr., of Longview, Tex.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of duchess satin fashioned on princess lines with a deep yoke embroidered in seed pearls, its full skirt extending into a train. Her full length veil of bridal illusion fell from a bonnet of imported lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids.

Miss Anne L. Blackwell was maid of honor and Mrs. John M. Rose, jr., matron of honor. The bridesmaids were the Misses Rosalie Huske, Ruth Olive, Josephine Hunter and Sally Townsend. Little Miss Kit Benton was flower girl. Serving as Lieutenant Meredith's best man was Lt. G. G. Thomas, and the groomsmen were Lts. Kirby Lamar, C. P. Barger, W. G. Skelton, Ross Mayfield, jr., and James N. Nold, while the ushers were the Messers J. Huske, jr., M. B. deRosset, jr., R. E. Nimrocks, jr., J. M. Clark, jr., R. G. Singleton, jr., and B. McNeill.

After a recent wedding trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel French Slaughter, jr., are making their home at Charlottesville, Va., where Mr. Slaughter is a student at the University of Virginia Law School.

They were married, 27 Jan., at Christ Protestant Episcopal Church in Georgetown, Washington, D. C., with the Reverend John R. Anschutz officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Thomas Buchanan Dugan, wife of Captain Dugan, USN, of Washington, and Capt. Lionel Lewis Rowe, USN, of Arlington, Va. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Slaughter of Culpeper, Va.

Given in marriage by her step-father, Mrs. Slaughter wore a gown of ivory satin designed with a buttoned bodice and full skirt. Her veil of heirloom lace and tulle was arranged in a cap style and she carried a bouquet of mixed white flowers.

Her honor attendants were her two sisters, Mrs. George L. Fleming of Lancaster, Pa., and Miss Edythe R. Rowe. The other attendants were Mrs. Lawrence C. Dalley, Miss Alix de Castellane, Mrs. Cameron Thompson, Mrs. Cortright Wetherill, Mrs. Walter Scotten, 2d, and Miss Molly R. Reynolds. The bridegroom's brother, Mr. Johnson Slaughter, was best man, and ushers were Messers C. Thompson, R. Roberts, jr., L. L. Rowe, jr., S. Fray, W. Hurt, W. Halley, H. Valentine and Lt. (jg) Bernard Williams, USN.

Mrs. Slaughter is an alumna of the Shipley School, Holton Arms and George Washington University. The bridegroom attended the Virginia Military Institute for one year, but received his B. A. degree from the University of Virginia. During World War II, he served in the Army for four years, part of the time in the European theatre.

Saint John's Chapel in Del Monte, Calif., was the scene on 11 Feb. of the four o'clock candlelight marriage of Meredith Ann Shields (Ensign, NC, USN) and Lt. (jg.) Kenneth Gilmore Corbett, jr., USN.

The bride, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lin Shields at the Presidio of Monterey, was given in marriage by her father. Meredith chose as her wedding gown a floor length white imported Chantilly lace, fashioned with a fitted bodice attached to a bouffant skirt over satin and net. Her finger-tip length illusion veil fell from a Juliet cap studded with seed pearls. At her neck she pinned an heirloom cameo belonging to her paternal grandmother. She also carried a handkerchief which has been carried by brides in her mother's family for three generations. The bride's favorite flower being violets, her nosegay bouquet was violets centered with white baby orchids and white satin streamers.

Her only attendant was Miss Mildred Grappe of San Diego.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Helmer Schean and the late Kenneth Gilmore Corbett, sr., of Superior, Wisc. His best man was Lt. Russell Jonson of the United States Naval School General Line. Serving as ushers were Lt. (jg) William S. Mayer, USN, and Lt. Russell C. Schubert, USN, of the General Line School.

The bride was graduated from the University of California in the School of Nursing, class of February, 1948, and is currently an Ensign in the Navy Nurse Corps, stationed at the U. S. Naval Hospital, San Diego, Calif.

The groom graduated from the U. S. Naval School General Line at Del Monte, with the December 1950 class, and is currently stationed aboard the destroyer USS Tingey at San Diego.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. James Duffy and Mrs. Mildred McDonald, uncle and cousin of the groom, Superior, Wisc.; Mrs. J. K. Munson, grandmother of the bride Olympia, Wash.; Mrs. O. F. Coon, Spokane, Wash., and Miss Kathleen Wilson, Olympia, Wash., aunts of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Ostler, Mrs. Grace Burt of Berkeley, Calif., and Col. and Mrs. Fred C. Lundberg of La Fayette, Calif.

At a five-thirty o'clock ceremony Sunday afternoon 18 Feb. at Ft. Bragg, N. C., Miss Jane Jones, the attractive daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ray Boyd Jones, became the bride of Lt. Charles E. Davis, the son of Mrs. Joseph Knowles of Los Angeles, Calif.

The service was read by Chaplain S. R. Crumpton before an altar exquisitely appointed with white gladioli and native greenery.

The bride, entering on the arm of her father, was beautifully gowned in all-over white lace. The gown, with the new uneven hemline, had a jacket, long-sleeved with off-the-shoulder neckline, of the same lace as the wedding dress. The veil, of illusion, was caught to a white satin crown. The bride carried a prayer book with a cluster of white orchids. Mrs. G. J. Duguemin, of Caduhy, Wisconsin, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was gowned in violet lace, ballerina length, with a matching tulle hat. Her flowers were pink carnations. Miss Martha Smith, from Ft. Hamilton, New Jersey, was maid of honor, and gowned identically with Mrs. Duguemin.

Lt. Samuel Grist was best man. The ushers were Lt. Robert Whitelaw and Lt. Kenneth Miller.

Lt. and Mrs. Davis left after the reception for a short wedding trip. Lt. Davis has been aide-de-camp to Maj. Gen. David Barr, USA, recently returned to the states from the Far East. He was temporarily at Ft. Knox, Ky., but just before the wedding received orders to Ft. Benning, Ga.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Heckendorf, the bride's grandparents, from Pilger, Nebraska; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Snodgrass, cousins of the bridegroom, from Atlanta, Ga., and Col. and Mrs. Gonseth from Washington, D. C.

■ CLARK AFB, PHILIPPINES. A record crowd of more than 200 members attended the semiannual fashion show presented at the February luncheon and business meeting of the Officers' Wives Club. The show was built around fashions which could be designed and made of materials purchased in the Philippines, and reflected native talent and ability on all sides.

The show was stage-managed by a six-member committee headed by Mrs. Ira F. Wintermute, club program chairman. Members included Mrs. Dolph G. Frantz, Mrs. Edward Graf, Mrs. John F. Landry, Mrs. John P. Wells and Mrs. Eugene E. Wilson. Mrs. Arthur B. Harris was fashion commentator.

Only business of the day was the announcement of candidates for the forthcoming semiannual elections in March. Nominated for president were Mrs. Arthur B. Harris and Mrs. Torvald B. Thompson and for vice-president, Mrs. Eddie J. Broussard and Mrs. Edwin B. Tigner. Other nominees for office included for secretary, Mrs. Nelson F. Lenhardt and Mrs. Elbert E. Watson; for treasurer, Mrs. Homer M. Cox and Mrs. Raymond E. Frey; for program chairman, Mrs. William H. Kemble and Mrs. Charles S. Wolf; for welcoming committee chairman, Mrs. Edwin G. Jane and Mrs. Richard D. Riddle, and for publicity chairman, Mrs. Leonard J. Barrow, Jr. and Mrs. Everett A. Treize.

■ FORT BLISS, TEX. In addition to its regular monthly luncheon, the Fort Bliss Women's Club presented "Spring Is Here," a fashion show coordinating gowns, collars and make-up, on March 1. The choral group of the Club, under the direction of Mrs. R. C. Pulaski, opened the show with "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," and then sang "Lovely to Look At," "Tea for Two," and "The Way You Look Tonight," accompanied by Mrs. Gordon L. Vincent at the piano. Mrs. Vincent also played background music during the show.

The gowns were modeled by the following ladies: Mrs. Henry D. Anastasas, Mrs. John H. Crowe, Mrs. William Farne, Mrs. James Gimmel, Mrs. William J. Lynch, Mrs. H. H. Mermagen, Mrs. James D. Land, Mrs. Thurston Paul, Mrs. Edward Quilter, Mrs. G. L. Semmens, and Mrs. Donald Stevens.

Mrs. George Carey was program chairman. The models were trained by Mrs. David Cooper with Mrs. J. David Lewis handling the props and Mrs. James Moore commenting.

■ ARMY CHEMICAL CENTER, MD. Personnel of the Army Chemical Center, Maryland, contributed $10,175.00 to the 1951 March of Dimes Campaign. Largest sectional contribution came from the Chemical Corps School where there was a total of $1,098.45, or $4.58 per person. The 401st Chemical Laboratory Team was second on the individual contribution list, with $4.11 per person.

■ CAMP ROBERTS, CALIF. A Medical Services auxiliary was formed recently by the wives of Medical, Dental and Medical Service Officers, and the nurses and women's specialists Corps stationed at the U. S. Army Hospital here. Mrs. George Horsfall, wife of Colonel Horsfall, commanding officer of the Hospital, was elected president. Mrs. William Marbut is 1st vice president; Mrs. E. Arnoldy, Secretary; Lt. Evelyn Rudd, Treasurer; and Lt. Betty Cheliman alternate treasurer.

Mrs. Horsfall appointed the following committee members: Mrs. William Jackson, Program; Mrs. Dean Winn, Nominating; Mrs. William Ryan, Publicity; Mrs. William Marbut, Benevolence.

■ SASEBO, JAPAN. This Navy base ended its March of Dimes campaign with a total of $2,424.85, donated by the 1,251 officers and enlisted personnel in this command.

The Dragonettes, a Navy wives club, collected $128.95, apart from the amount previously donated by Fleet Activities.

In charge of the Dimes and Dollars Polio fund drive was Lt. Joe Bell of Seattle, Operations Officer at Fleet Activities, Sasebo. Fleet Activities is commanded by Comdr. M. C. Walley, USN.

■ CAMP STONEMAN, CALIF. This post was the host to city and county judicial and law-enforcement officials at a recent luncheon and tour of the post's confinement facilities. Col. T. G. Jenkins and members of his staff greeted the visitors, who were the guests of Lt. Col. Patrick W. Laurie, Post Provost Marshal, and members of his staff. The purpose of the meeting was to orient the city and county officials on the operation at Camp Stoneman and to better acquaint them with the military police operation and the many problems of mutual concern to the military and civilian authorities in their relations with service men.

Among those who attended the luncheon and tour were: Superior Judges Hugh H.

Donovan, Harold Jacoby and Homer W. Patterson; Sheriff James N. Long; Inspector Ray Stoeffels; Captain George A. Belon of the California Highway Patrol; Police Chief Sal P. Jimmo and Inspector Joseph Schillace of Pittsburgh; Police Chief Steve Neilson of Martinez; Police Chief Harry Boyer and Constable John Rademaker, Antioch; Police Chief James Hanratty of Brentwood; and William Blackburn, acting police chief, Concord.

■ CAMP BRECKINRIDGE, KY. In a modest start consisting of thirty-five photographs of war-time experiences of the 101st Airborne Infantry Division, a long planned project of Brig. Gen. C. E. Ryan, Commanding General of the Division and Camp Breckinridge, has been opened to visitors.

The pictures—action shots by Signal Corps photographers—are mounted in glass enclosed display cases. They are actual war-time photos and are intensely interesting. Additions will be made to the photo display as available. Plans include display cases for souvenirs and trophies for which a special room will be made available when the size of the exhibit so warrants.

Former veterans of the 101st Airborne Division and any other veterans who have souvenirs which they would like to contribute to the display, are invited to send them. Inquiries may be addressed to the Public Information Officer, Camp Breckinridge, Ky. Material which is contributed will be accepted with the provision that it will become the property of the 101st Airborne Division Association, Washington, DC, if the division leaves the United States or is inactivated. The establishment of the Shrine at the point where the reactivated division is now established is very enthusiastically received by the 101st Airborne Division Association. A placard will be displayed showing the name of the donor of each article and, if available, the circumstances under which the article was acquired.

■ ANNAPOLIS, MD. Maj. Gen. Mariano N. Castaneda, Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippine Islands, accompanied by Lt. Col. Manuel Salntes, Capt. M. J. Duhalin and Representative Cornelio Villaral were visitors at the Naval Academy last Tuesday. After a tour of the buildings and grounds with Vice Adm. Harry W. Hill, the party had lunch with the midshipmen at Bancroft Hall.

Admiral and Mrs. Thomas E. Hart of Sharon, Conn., were the guests of Admiral and Mrs. Hill over the weekend.

Rear Adm. and Mrs. A. A. Antrim of Mechanicsburg, Pa., and their daughter, Miss Ann Antrim, spent the weekend with Commo. and Mrs. Myron H. Hutchinson of Acton Place.

Comdr. Leslie C. Slack has returned to the west coast after a short leave with Mrs. Slack at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Walton H. Hopkins of Maryland Ave.

■ FORT BENNING, GA. Brig. Gen. George Honnen, Infantry Center commander, announced last week that Col. Charles E. Woodruff has been appointed chairman of the 1951 Red Cross fund raising drive.

■ FORT EUSTIS, VA. Operation March of Dimes was concluded last week at the Transportation Center, when Mr. W. D. Wildman, Jr., vice-president of the Citizens Marine Jefferson Bank and 1951 campaign director of the Newport News-Warwick County Infantile Paralysis Fund, accepted a check for $6714.50 from Maj. Phillip I. Klein, custodian of the Eustis fund. The ceremony took place in the office of Maj. Gen. Walter J. Muller, USA, commanding general of the Transportation Center. General Muller, unable to be present, was represented by Col. Wilber M. Galge, Jr., chief of staff. Also present were Mr. H. T. Parker, vice-president of the 1st National Bank and treasurer of the Newport News-Warwick County Infantile Paralysis Fund, Mr. E. J. Short, civilian representative, Fort Eustis, and Capt. G. R. Easterling, acting public information officer.

■ MONTEREY, CALIF. Bringing to the Monterey Peninsula a number of leading authorities on foreign affairs, the U. S. Naval School, General Line, at Monterey, California, initiated a lecture series on International Relations, 23 Feb. Capt. Thomas J. Casey, USN, is Commanding Officer of the School.

The lectures are a part of the General Line Course which convened at the Naval School 12 Feb. The speakers are being furnished by the Hoover Institute and Library at Stanford University.

■ SAN DIEGO, CALIF. Read Adm. and Mrs. Laurence T. DuBose are leaving soon for a new station and in farewell to them Capt. and Mrs. John S. Abbott were hosts on 21 Feb., in their Coronado home. Sharing the courtesy with the honorees at dinner were: Rear Adm. and Mrs. Thos. B. Ingalls, Gen. and Mrs. W. D. Styer, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Thorne, Capt. and Mrs. Robt. Kirkpatrick, J. R. Barry, Herbert Jones, and Laurence Wild.

The Commissioned Officers' Mess, Fleet Sonar School was the scene of a dinner party given on 23 Feb. when Capt. and Mrs. Frederick Moosbrugger entertained. Enjoying their hospitality were: Capt. and Mrs. T. W. Davidson, W. E. Premo, Jr. and Comdr. and Mrs. Verne Williams.

Rear Adm. and Mrs. T. C. Anderson, of Philadelphia, who are winter visitors in San Diego, are enjoying many social courtesies as houseguests of Rear Adm. and Mrs. Paul M. Albright and of Capt. and Mrs. Frank Haigler. On 20 Feb. they were honorees at a dinner party given by Capt. and Mrs. W. R. Whiteford and the following day they were honored by Capt. and Mrs. S. L. Higgins, who entertained them at luncheon.

■ FORT BENJAMIN HARRISON, IND. Col. Leland S. Smith, Commandant of the Adjutant General School visited here last week. He inspected progress being made to open AG School classes 18 March.

Operation Housing is underway at Fort Harrison. Efforts are being made to find living accommodations for the hundreds of officers and enlisted men moving to the post with the Adjutant General School and Army Finance Center and School. A bureau has been set up to handle housing information and disseminate it to incoming personnel.

The Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce and Indianapolis Real Estate Board are co-operating with Fort Benjamin Harrison, Col. John H. Gibson, post commander said, and doing everything possible to find the needed housing.

■ OAKLAND, CALIF. The Officers' Wives Club, Naval Supply Center, held their monthly luncheon 21 Feb. Mrs. John G. O'Hendley was chairman of the group of wives who were hostesses for the event.

After luncheon Miss Patricia O'Regan, recently from Ireland, who is associated with Trans-Ocean Air Lines and manages the International Restaurant at the Oakland Airport gave a delightful talk about her experiences in the hotel and restaurant business, and a recent trip to Wake Island and Tokyo.

■ FORT KNOX, KY. Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, USA, recently returned from Korea, arrived here last week to assume command of the Armored Center and The Armored School. He was greeted by an escort at the entrance to the post and was accorded an honor guard at post headquarters. Maj. Gen. Ira P. Swift, USA, recently named commanding general of the 3d Armored Division, had been serving as post commander.

Secretary of the Army Frank Pace has described his recent visit to Fort Knox as "most satisfactory." In a letter to Brig Gen. Thomas L. Harrold, USA, Secretary Pace commended The Armored Center's officers and men for "the effective contribution they are making to our combat arms and our expanding army. Their many courtesies to me, especially the guard of honor, will long be remembered," he said. Mr. Pace was accompanied on his recent Knox visit by Army Field Forces Commander, General Mark Clark and Second Army Commander Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet.

■ NEW YORK PORT OF EMBARKATION. One hundred ninety-four officers completed the course in Property and Supply Control and Accounting. The class achieved an average of 87% on examinations compared to an average of 83% made by a class of 112 civilian employees of the Port who took the same course. The following named officers made 100% on all their examinations: Lt. Col. R. T. Flynn, Maj. G. P. Holm, Maj. R. E. McManus, Maj. P. M. O'Neill, Capt. F. B. Chase, Capt. M. A. Guild, Capt. L. E. McGee, Capt. P. D. Snow, Lt. H. C. Barbe, Lt. M. A. Crowley, Lt. V. D. Rider, Lt. C. Stagner and Lt. A. Young.

Club to Hear Col. Anderson

A word and picture description of America's colorful West will be brought Army & Navy Club members at Washington 6 March at 8:30 P. M. by Col. H. C. (Bud) Anderson, traveling lecturer for Union Pacific Railroad.

Colonel Anderson has traveled and talked in the 48 states and eight foreign countries, spending his summers exploring and photographing the remote and untrammeled scenic wilderness of the western United States.

Prior to joining Union Pacific, Colonel Anderson spent seven years in the service, much of that time on foreign duty, and served two years as secretary-manager of the Wyoming commerce and industry commission.

Gen. Hodges to First AF C.O.

Maj. Gen. James P. Hodges, USAF, arrived at Mitchell AFB, N. Y., this week to succeed Maj. Gen. Willis H. Hale, USAF, as commanding officer of the First Air Force.

General Hodges previously was U. S. Commissioner, Military-Security Board at Coblenz, Germany. General Hale was serving as First Air Force commander in addition to duty as commander of the Continental Air Command.

Rotation Plans Revealed

The improvement of the military situation in Korea and the completion of training by thousands of young men in the United States now has permitted the Services to initiate implementation of plans for rotation of troops from Korea.

Affected may be more than a quarter of a million men who are in combat against the enemy.

The Army has stated that it wants to begin rotation of veteran troops as soon as enough replacements have been sent to the Far East. If conditions remain favorable, the likelihood is that the Army will be able to begin an earnest rotation program this Spring, which in addition to giving troops a well-deserved respite will provide experienced personnel for the training activities in the United States.

The Air Force, which suspended rotation from the Far East Air Forces when the conflict broke out in Korea, will resume the return of airmen and officers to the United States about 1 May.

The Air Force announcement stated: "Present plan calls for return during May of personnel previously scheduled for rotation in July 1950. A normal tour of duty in Japan is 30 months and varies throughout the rest of FEAF."

"Although the objective of the plan is an eventual return to the rotation system in existence prior to the Korean incident, the rate at which the rotation backlog can be reduced is dependent entirely on world developments and USAF-wide requirements."

"FEAF will rotate personnel, exclusive of combat crews, in order of length of foreign service on current tour. Personnel on combat crews are and will continue to be handled as a separate project."

"Combat experienced crew and personnel are presently being returned to the U. S. in the specialty fields required to provide U. S. training establishments and newly-activated units with a valuable leavening of individuals with recent combat-zone experience."

"Detailed plans for resumption of rotation are now being drawn up by Headquarters, FEAF, in coordination with Headquarters, USAF."

Replacements will maintain the combat strength of FEAF at its present level, Air Force officials reported.

The Marine Corps has announced a small scale rotation plan for its troops in Korea, although the actual number of Marines to be returned to the United States on a monthly basis was not disclosed.

It was pointed out that only a limited number of trained replacements are available to replace the Korean veterans at this time. As a result the rotation program is not expected to be completed for some time to come. However, a group of 600 Marines is scheduled to arrive 5 March at San Francisco under the rotation plan.

Headquarters Marine Corps has established general policies upon which return of personnel will be effected. Field commanders, influenced by time in combat, dependents, and other factors will determine the individuals to be returned.

The Navy said this week that "rotation of personnel in the Korean area is being carried on by the returning of certain ships to the United States area."

Obituaries

Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore, USA

Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore, USA, former Superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy, slated to command the VII Corps at Ft. Meade, Md, but instead sent to Korea to command the IX Corps, on 24 Feb, became the second American general to die in action. General Walton H. Walker, USA, Commanding General Eighth Army, was killed in a jeep crash on 23 Dec. 1950. A third general officer, Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, USA, is listed officially as "missing in action."

General Moore met death after his helicopter crashed in the Han River near the fighting front. A field dispatch indicated that General Moore died of a heart attack, probably the result of immersion in the icy river. He had arrived in Korea on 20 Jan. and on 13 Feb. the Army announced he had assumed command of the IX Corps.

Expressing "deep regret" at the death of General Moore, General of the Army Douglas MacArthur said "he was an officer of great skill and courage and his loss will be keenly felt by this command."

General Moore is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret K. Moore, and two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Wood, wife of Maj. James Wood of Kirtland AFB, N. M., and Mrs. Barbara Kuby of Chicago.

General Moore's body will be returned to the United States by ship and interment will be at West Point, N. Y.

Born at Ellsworth, Me., 6 June 1894, General Moore was appointed to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point 15 June 1914, and on 30 Aug. 1917 was graduated and commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry. That same date he was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant.

In January 1942 General Moore went to Australia with a task force which occupied New Caledonia and subsequently was reorganized to constitute the American Division. He served as the division's assistant chief of staff for intelligence and operations until becoming commander of the 164th Infantry Regiment in September 1942.

General Moore returned to the United States in February 1943 for duty with the 104th Infantry Division at Camp Adair, Ore. In September 1944 he accompanied the 104th to the European theater of operations, where he assumed command of it in February 1945. After V-J Day he moved with the division to Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

In October 1945 he went overseas to command the 88th Division in Venezia Giulia, Northeast Italy, and two years later became commanding general of the Trieste United States Troops, Free Territory of Trieste.

General Moore returned to the United States in July 1948 to become chief of the Public Information Division of the War Department at Washington, D. C., and a year later was appointed Superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy.

Col. Arthur L. Conger, USA-Ret.

Col. Arthur L. Conger, USA-Ret., died, following a heart attack, at his home at Pasadena, Calif., on 19 Feb.

Colonel Conger retired from active duty, after 30 years' service, in 1928. He had devoted most of his time since then to his work as international head of the Theosophical Society.

He was graduated from Harvard University in 1894, and in 1898, during the Spanish-American War, enlisted as a private in the Army. He commanded the 56th Brigade of the 28th Division during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, and was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Honor and the French Croix de Guerre with palms. Later, Colonel Conger served as Military Attaché at Berlin, Copenhagen, Oslo, Stockholm and Bern. He was author of several books, among which was "The Rise of U. S. Grant," published in 1931.

Colonel Conger is survived by his widow, Mrs. Martha R. Conger of North Grand Ave., Pasadena.

Maj. Kent L. Moody, Ret.

Maj. Kent L. Moody, a retired veteran of both World Wars, died 3 Feb., at his home at Portland, Ore.

Major Moody's service in World War I included duty in Germany with the National Guard unit, the 162d Infantry. In 1924, he joined the 41st Division, and in World War II, was transferred back to the 162d Infantry. With this unit he served for 2½ years in Australia, until, because of illness, he was returned to the United States. Because of physical disability, in 1945 he was retired from active duty.

Major Moody was an automobile dealer in Oregon City in civil life. He took an active part in many civic organizations. He was a life member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church there, a past exalted ruler of Elk Lodge No. 1189, the organizer and commander of the 41st Division Association, and for many years played a prominent role in the American Legion activities of both Oregon City and Portland.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Rose Moody of 1670 N. E. Irving St., Portland; a son, Harry; a daughter, Mrs. Richard E. Bare of San Mateo, Calif.; and two grandsons.

Comdr. Frederick T. Stevenson, USN-Ret.

Comdr. Frederick T. Stevenson, USN-Ret., (USNA '07), vice president of the Wind Turbine Co., and resident of West Chester, Pa., died on 24 Feb.

Commander Stevenson, during World Wars I and II, served as a line officer in the Navy. After his retirement, he took an active part in community affairs and church work. He was a vestryman of the Church of the Holy Trinity of West Chester, and a member and former director of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. Commander Stevenson was well known for his interest and efforts in behalf of the youth in the church and community.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Marion Hoopes Stevenson of 221 N. Matlack St., West Chester, and two sisters, both of San Francisco, Calif.

Warrant Officers

must await a Department bill.

However, Congressman Sutton states that since his bill follows the policy adopted by inter-service representatives more than a year ago and never refuted subsequently, Department agreement on basic principles will be forthcoming.

A Department of Defense spokesman said late this week that the warrant officer bill still has not cleared the Personnel Policy Board. This could mean that no bill may reach Congress prior to consideration of Congressman Sutton's legislation. Although it is certain that the Department will be asked to comment on Mr. Sutton's bill, which conceivably would speed-up the Pentagon processing.

Following is the text of Congressman Sutton's bill, H.R. 2942, described as "a bill to amend the Career Compensation Act, 1949, with respect to the assignment of warrant officers and chief and commissioned warrant officers to pay grades provided therein and for other purposes."

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That subsection (c) of section 201 of title II of the Career Compensation Act, 1949, is hereby repealed.

Sec. 2. A new subsection (c) of section 201 of title II of the Career Compensation Act, 1949, is hereby enacted as follows:

"(c) For basic pay purposes, warrant officers, chief warrant officers, and commissioned warrant officers (including those heretofore retired) are hereby assigned to the various pay grades, whether under temporary or permanent appointment, prescribed for warrant officers by subsection (a) of this section as follows:

Pay grade Assignment

W-4—Chief warrant officers and commissioned warrant officers after six years' satisfactory service in pay grade W-3.

W-3—Chief warrant officers and commissioned warrant officers after six years' satisfactory service in pay grade W-2.

W-2—Chief warrant officers and commissioned warrant officers on first appointment and those not assigned to pay grades W-3 and W-4. Warrant officers, upon completion of three years' service as officers, and found qualified as prescribed below, shall be appointed chief warrant officers or commissioned warrant officers and assigned to pay grade W-2.

W-1—All warrant officers.

Provided, (1) That with respect to chief warrant officers and commissioned warrant officers serving in any pay grade on the effective date of this Act—

"(a) such officers shall be assigned to pay grade W-4 upon completion of fifteen years' satisfactory service as officers or upon completion of twelve years' satisfactory commissioned service, whichever period shall be first completed by the officer concerned;

"(b) such officers shall be assigned to pay grade W-3 upon completion of nine years' satisfactory service as officers or upon completion of six years' satisfactory commissioned service, whichever period shall be first completed by the officer concerned.

"(2) That the three-year period as warrant officer in pay grade W-1 above be deemed a probationary status for the officer involved; and a warrant officer after an extension of one year who twice fails of selection for promotion in successive years shall revert to such other higher enlisted grade or rate held at the time he was first appointed as a warrant officer: Provided further, That warrant officers without previous enlisted service may be listed in such grade or rate as the respective Secretary may determine: Provided further, That warrant officers, having twenty or more years' active service, after an extension of one year, who twice fail of selection for promotion in successive years shall be placed upon the retired list on 30 June of the fiscal year in which they fail of selection the second time, with pay computed at the rate of 2½ per centum of the pay received at the time of retirement multiplied by the number of years of total active service: Provided further, That for the purpose of computing retired pay, a fractional part of the year of service shall, if less than six months, be disregarded, and, if six months or more, shall be regarded as a full year.

"(3) That the respective Secretaries shall provide standards for the physical, mental, and moral qualifications for advancement from warrant officer (pay grade W-1) to commissioned warrant officer or chief warrant officer (pay grade W-2) covered by this subsection (c) of section 201 of this Act, incorporating in such standards the time requirements heretofore prescribed and shall set up selection boards for determining whether officer service is satisfactory for assignments of commissioned warrant officers and chief warrant officers to pay grades W-3 and W-4.

"(4) That in order to provide for the varying needs of each service the respective Secretaries are hereby authorized to make assignments to higher pay grades without regard to the service requirements set forth herein.

"(5) That nothing herein contained shall deprive any warrant officer or commissioned warrant officer or chief warrant officer of the benefits enjoyed by reason of the provisions contained in this or any other Act."

Air Generals Shifted

Maj. Gen. Kenneth P. McNaughton, USAF, this week was reassigned from his post as Director of Training to duty in a newly created post handling contracts with civilian technical schools.

General McNaughton is succeeded by Brig. Gen. Gabriel B. Disoway, USAF, formerly his assistant. The shift in assignments came one week after the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee had issued a critical report of Air Force overloading of the Lackland AFB, Tex., indoctrination center.

Supply Group C.O.

Col. Lloyd C. Smith has assumed duties as director of the supply division at Hill AFB, Utah, and as commanding officer of the 25th Supply Group, replacing Lt. Col. Hyman Shachtman, now attending the Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala.

U. S. COAST GUARD

OFFICIALS at Coast Guard Headquarters report that present plans envisage the retirements about 1 June of approximately 96 retirements under the 20-year retirement law.

Requests must be submitted by 15 March, although it was stated that persons who previously have applied need not submit a new application.

Selections for retirement will be made on the basis of length of service. Present indication is that no one with less than 25 years service will be retired.

Alameda Graduation

The first group of trainees to complete the "boot" course at the reactivated Alameda, Calif., Training Station, reopened on 4 Dec. 1950, under command of Comdr. R. E. Mroczkowski, USCG, was graduated on 28 Feb. Rear Adm. J. E. Stika, USCG, reviewed the trainees and delivered an address. Admiral Stika is 12th Coast Guard District commander and commander of the Western Area.

Air Chart Service

planning, target, air navigation, air pilotage, approach and landing, long range and special charts. Publications containing approach and landing charts are issued in eleven editions to provide world coverage for Air Force pilots and navigators. A catalogue is published to assist Air Force units in keeping an adequate stock always on hand.

Contact is maintained with all the major Air Force commands and many of the subordinate units not only to keep them advised but also to examine and solve any special charting problems. Effort is also made to anticipate needs where possible through staff visits to units in various parts of the world. For instance, the writer proceeded to FEAF for consultations shortly after the beginning of hostilities in Korea.

Requirements for aeronautical charts are increasing due to the expansion of the Air Force and emergency needs. During the fiscal year 1950, 17,550,000 charts were distributed to users. In July 1950, the first month of fiscal year 1951, distribution was more than 3,335,000 copies. During the period July through October 1950, some 1,660,000 charts were forwarded to FEAF.

Volume of production is one element of the job. Progressive improvement of aeronautical charts is another. The latter element has several categories.

There is, for example, the task of providing charts which will solve the problems occasioned by the newer elements of high-speed, high-altitude flying and the limited cockpit space of jet aircraft. These problems are being studied in the designing room and in the field, especially in coordination with the major jet commands. One of the results is a recently published jet instrument landing chart so small that it slips easily into the pilot's pocket but is so simply and adequately designed that it is an efficient replacement for the larger types.

Aside from such special problems, all charts are reviewed regularly for possible revision or recompilation. New information from a multitude of sources, including aerial photography, is constantly being received and put to use. The Air Force has photographed more than 16,000,000 square miles of the earth's surface, and a great portion of that photography has been compiled and used in aeronautical charts.

Coordination with the Army and the Navy is an essential part of the charting problem. Consultation with other governmental map-and-chart-making agencies is a vital and routine operation. Additionally, there is coordination on an international scale.

The Aeronautical Chart and Information Service represents or advises Air Force Headquarters concerning mapping and charting activities at Department of Defense, Federal Government and international levels, and is frequently called upon to take part in appropriate conferences and meetings. Last October, it sent a delegation to the Fifth General Assembly of the Pan-American Institute of Geography and History at Santiago, Chile. It reported excellent progress toward a primary objective of helping all nations of the Americas to become able, in the event of a world emergency, to produce and maintain their own aeronautical charts.

To accomplish its mission the Aeronautical Chart and Information Service maintains Headquarters in Washington, D. C., with policy and planning functions and headquarters direction of operational activities, and an installation at St. Louis, Mo., where chart preparation, production and distribution activities are accomplished. Distribution is made directly to Air Force units everywhere. The organization has a small officer staff. Production activities are in the hands of expertly qualified civilian technicians. Most of the officers are pilots or navigators, and some of the civilian technicians saw service in either capacity during World War II.

Action has been taken whereby the Aeronautical Chart and Information Service under the aegis of the Air Materiel Command will have improved facilities for the accomplishment of its mission. The acquisition of new quarters and new equipment in St. Louis and an increased program for the training of technicians are in process.

Clothing Allowance Increased

The Navy has announced an increase in the initial clothing monetary allowance for enlisted men from $118.35 to $254.75. At the same time, the monthly basic allowance for clothing was upped to $5.10, and the standard maintenance clothing allowance to $7.20.

The present special initial clothing monetary allowance was increased from $6.00 to $7.20 (monthly basic), and from $6.60 to $8.40 (standard maintenance).

In making the announcement, the Navy said that enlisted men who, prior to 1 March, entered into a status which entitled them to the initial clothing monetary allowance and who had an unpaid balance on that date of an allowance remaining to their credit, will be credited with a special additional clothing monetary allowance in an amount equal to the product of the unpaid balance multiplied by 1.06.

The Navy also released a revised price list for clothing and small stores items. Included in the list were the following items with their new, and for the most part, higher, prices:

Seabags, $3.75	Blue undress jumpers, $11.65
Wool blankets, $20	Dungaree jumpers, $2
Blue cloth caps, $3.25	Dungaree trousers, $2
Black leather gloves, $3.45	White undress jumpers, $2.55
Blue woolen gloves, $1.75	Blue trousers, $15
Leather work gloves, $1.60	Overcoats, $39.65
Jerseys, $6.10	Raincoats, $11.80
Blue dress jumpers, $16.50	CPO gold rating badges, $4.20
Dark blue flannel shirts, $11.60	CPO silver rating badges, $2.75
Low black leather shoes, $8.50	Low brown leather shoes, $8.50

General's Son Wounded

1st Lt. Phillip D. Bolte, USA, brother of 1st Lt. David E. Bolte, who was seriously wounded in Korea last fall and now is at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C., also has been wounded in action.

The Bolte brothers are the sons of Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Charles L. Bolte, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff, Plans.

Mrs. Bolte said this week that a telephone conversation with Phillip revealed that he was wounded while serving with the 7th Cavalry Regiment. Lieutenant Bolte suffered shrapnel wounds in his left leg, side and hand and around the eyes. Mrs. Bolte indicated, however, that his condition is not serious.

Alaskan Air Posts

Lt. Col. Harold J. Watters, USAF, has been appointed Adjutant General of the Alaskan Command. Prior to his new assignment, he was Director of Organization, Alaskan Air Command.

Announcement was also made of the assignment of Col. Robert D. Gopen, USAF, to the Plans and Operations section of the Alaskan Command. Colonel Gopen was previously Chief of Staff of the 39th Air Depot Wing and the former 57th Fighter-Interceptor Wing.

Launches Sub Killer

The first of the Navy's new post-war antisubmarine submarines was launched yesterday, 2 March, at the Electric Boat Company, Groton, Conn.

The new submarine, designated K-1, is 195 feet long and displaces 750 tons as compared to the present fleet type submarine, 311 feet long and displacing about 1,500 tons. Latest developments in sonar and other electronic detection equipment have been utilized, the Navy said.

Sponsor for the K-1 in the launching ceremonies was Mrs. Willis Manning Thomas of Arlington, Va. Mrs. Thomas is the widow of Comdr. W. M. Thomas, USN, who commanded the submarine Pompano in World War II when the Pompano was lost during her seventh war patrol in enemy waters. In six patrols completed before her loss, the Pompano sank ten enemy ships totaling 42,000 tons and damaged four others totaling 55,300 tons.

Rear Adm. C. B. Momsen, USN, former Assistant Chief of Naval Operations for Undersea Warfare, recently emphasized the importance of the new killer-type submarine in the Navy's future program when he said: "It is around this type that we propose to build the submarine defense against the submarine. I can say that from my own experience there is no foe that strikes more terror in the heart of a submariner than an enemy submarine operating in the same waters. It is somewhat analogous to two blindfolded antagonists armed with baseball bats, each waiting for the other to break silence."

The K-1 is the second submarine to have that designation. The first was completed in 1914, served during World War I and was decommissioned in 1922 at Hampton Roads, Va.

Operate Powder Works

A preliminary agreement has been made between the Army Ordnance Corps and the Liberty Powder Company for operation by that company of the powder manufacturing facilities of the Badger Ordnance Works at Baraboo, Wis.

The Liberty Powder Company is assembling its staff for the operation which is scheduled tentatively to begin during the latter part of the year. The Badger Works made military powders during World War II. It has been in standby status since October, 1945. Announcement was made 5 Feb. that the plant will be reactivated at an estimated cost of $10,000,000.

Boost Jet Engine Output

Director of Mobilization Charles E. Wilson told the Nation in a radio broadcast 23 Feb. that capacity will be provided for production of 216,000 jet engines a year.

Speaking of production objectives, Mr. Wilson said "we are establishing a production capacity of 35,000 tanks a year and intend to be able to produce 18,000 jet engines a month."

During World War II, the top annual production of aircraft engines was 260,000.

INDUSTRY * FINANCE * MARITIME

Col. Trichel Elected Firm's VP

Col. Gervais W. Trichel, USA-Ret., former chief of the Army Ordnance Department's rocket development program and one-time advisor to the director of the atomic bomb project, has been appointed a Vice President and a member of the Board of Directors of the Fargo Motor Corporation, the fleet sales subsidiary of Chrysler Corporation.

Announcement of Mr. Trichel's new appointment was made by Mr. Robert L. Biggers, President of the Fargo Motor Corporation.

Colonel Trichel became associated with Chrysler Corporation as a staff assistant to the General Manager in October, 1946, after 30 years of active service with the U. S. Army. His most recent work with the Company has been directly connected with defense contracts for tanks, tank engines, range finders, military vehicles, jet engines and other military products.

As chief of rocket development from 1943 to 1945, Colonel Trichel was engaged in setting up and directing the Army's guided missile program and for the initial establishment and direction of the White Sands Proving Ground in New Mexico. During his tour of duty as advisor to Lt. Gen. Leslie Groves, director of the atomic bomb project, Colonel Trichel supervised and coordinated arrangements for Army participation in Operation Crossroads at Bikini Atoll.

Deliver New Air Transport

The first transport in a new series of C-97 Stratofreighters was delivered to the Air Force 27 Feb. by Boeing Airplane Company in Seattle. Assigned to Continental Division of the Military Air Transport Service, the new airplane was flown away by a crew from Continental Division's headquarters at Kelly Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex.

The new airplane—designated a C-97C and the seventh new model in Boeing Stratofreighter lineage—is similar in outward appearance to its predecessor C-97A's which have figured prominently in the Pacific Airlift.

Only outward change is the elimination of two antennae which protruded above the control cabin of the C-97A and beneath its lower lobe. New designed flush-mounted antennae are used instead.

Most important interior change is fuselage structure strengthening to permit it to carry an additional ton of payload over flight ranges encountered in operations such as the Berlin Airlift.

Guided Missile Plant

Plans for the first factory devoted exclusively to production of guided missile weapons were announced this week in San Diego, Calif., by President LaMotte T. Cohue of Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp.

Convair said production would begin first on a secret super-sonic anti-aircraft missile for the Navy.

Also classified is the location of the new plant, which will be managed by Mr. Gage Irving, assistant to Mr. Cohue.

1950 Ship Launchings

Excluding the iron curtain countries, a total of 3,492,876 tons of merchant vessels of at least 100-ton size were launched during 1950, according to Lloyd's annual summary released in London this week.

The United States last year launched 52 ships totalling 437,031 tons, a decrease of 196,275 tons from 1949. Britain and Northern Ireland launched 275 ships of 1,324,570 tons.

New Allison Turbo-Jet

The Air Force has announced award of a production contract for a newly-developed Allison turbo-jet engine with a thrust rating substantially higher than any jet engine heretofore produced. The new super-jet, identified as the J35-A23, is said to offer a reduction in specific fuel consumption from other jet engines now in production.

The contract is one of the largest single orders ever placed with General Motors, according to Mr. E. B. Newill, vice president of General Motors and general manager of the Allison Division.

At the same time it was disclosed that Chevrolet Motor Division will build a substantial number of the new engines. Production facilities for the Chevrolet portion of the order will be set up in Tonawanda, N. Y., and other Chevrolet plant cities, and the Allison portion will be built in Indianapolis.

The new engine has been under development by Allison in cooperation with the Air Materiel Command of the U. S. Air Force since early in 1949. Under the production programs set up with the two divisions, Allison will continue engineering responsibility for further development of the engine.

Although identified as one of the J35 series engines which now power the Republic F84 Thunderjet and Northrop F89 Scorpion, the new engine represents a completely new design. However, it retains the basic diameter of previous engines in the J35 series and is reported to produce more power per square foot of frontal area than any engine now in production for the USAF.

Allison will continue to build earlier models in the J35 series as well as quantities of the J33 turbo-jet engine which now power the Lockheed F80 Shooting Star and F94 all-weather fighter and the Grumman F9F-3 Panther.

The recently-announced T40 series of Allison turbo-prop engines is scheduled for production during 1951 and production facilities are now being established in Indianapolis.

Chevrolet Defense Plan

Chevrolet Motors Division of General Motors announced this week that all defense work will be separated from civilian manufacture and will be under direction of B. D. Marshall.

Mr. Marshall will manage all defense manufacturing plants. He had been assistant manager of Chevrolet's Flint manufacturing division.

Air Firm Doubles Income

The Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corporation reports that its net income for 1950 almost doubled that of the previous year, $6,242,064 compared with $3,191,520 earned in 1949. Total income for 1950 was $102,533,827, against $59,965,277 for the previous year.

Defense Procurement

During the first seven months of the current fiscal year, the Department of Defense obligated $16.4 billion for the procurement of major equipment, supplies, military construction and expansion of production facilities.

For this period, the Department of Defense summary of procurement obligations shows:

Hard goods (aircraft, ships, tanks, weapons, ammunition, other equipment)	$14,100,000,000
Clothing, subsistence, petroleum products	1,500,000,000
Military construction and facilities expansion	800,000,000

Of the $16.4 billion obligated for procurement and construction the Army accounts for $6.3 billion, the Navy $3.4 billion, and the Air Force $6.7 billion.

Similarly, of the $16.4 billion, procurement for the Mutual Defense Assistance Program accounts for $1.7 billion.

Approximately $28.2 billion has been made available for U. S. Armed Services during the current fiscal year for procurement and construction, of which approximately $13.5 billion was authorized by the Congress early in January of this year. In addition, $3.6 billion has been made available for procurement under the Mutual Defense Assistance Program.

In addition to the $16.4 billion of recorded obligations at the end of January, the procuring agencies of the Department have reached advanced stages of negotiation for awarding contracts for much of the remaining funds available.

Total Department of Defense obligations for the fiscal year through January, including procurement and construction funds as well as military pay and allowances, research and development, and other activities, were approximately $23.1 billion.

Record Army Purchases

Contracts totalling approximately $450,000,000 were placed with American industry by the New York Quartermaster Procurement Agency, 111 East 16th St., New York City, during the month of January, it was announced this week by Brig. Gen. H. L. Peckham, USA, Commanding this large Quartermaster Corps purchasing installation.

Total contracts placed with industry for the first seven months of the fiscal year 1951 (July 1950 through January 1951) amounted to nearly $753,300,000—almost double that for the entire fiscal year 1949 (July 1948 through June 1949), amounting to $439,400,000, which was the peak year of NYQMPA procurement to date.

Signal Corps Procurement

Col. Harry L. Vitzthum has been designated Assistant Chief, Procurement and Distribution, Office of the Chief Signal Officer. He replaces Brig. Gen. Eugene V. Elder, who was designated Chief of the Division following the retirement of Brig. Gen. Alfred M. Shearer.

New York Defense Orders

The New York State Commerce Department reported this week that 19.7 per cent of defense contracts placed since the start of the Korean war have gone to manufacturers in that state.

From 7 July 1950 to 7 Feb. 1951, New York firms received $715,800,000 in defense orders.

X Corps G-4

Lt. Col. Edward L. Rowny, CE, formerly Engineer of X Corps, has been named Corps G-4 (Logistics and Supply Officer) by Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, USA, Corps Commander.
